EVERY-ONE WAS HAPPY

At the Centre--Clinton County Business Men's Picnic

15000 PEOPLE PRESENT

To Enjoy the Great Outing at Hecla Park the Garden Spot of Centre County —A Splendid Base Ball Game.

BETWEEN RENOVA AND PHILIPSBURG

One of the largest and greatest Business Men's picnic ever held by Centre and Clinton counties has passed into history.

From early morning until late in the afternoon and evening every train was crowded going into the park and on every country road could be seen vehicles of every description wending their ways to this beautiful Garden spot of Central Pennsylvania until at least 15000 people had assembled.

Everybody was happy and had such a royal good time. Farmers and Business Men from both counties met and talked about matters of business that transpired during the past year. The mothers took their babies and had hammocks swung between the trees for them to sleep in. We saw so many people that had gone there prepared to feed all their friends, sitting around in old picnic style laughing talking and eating and oh, but they were enjoying themselves.

The country boys and the boys from town visited the Berkstresser picture gallery and smiled as Jacob took a likeness of their faces, and they will take those little tintypes home and keep them as a momento of the Business Men's picnic of 1907.

The boats on the lake were in constant use and the boys took their little sweethearts out upon the deep blue waters and told them how fondly they loved them. Some girls didn't have any fellows and they certainly did look lonely.

The dancing was one of the principal amusements and the floor was crowded continually from the time the great and only orchestra (known as Smith's Renowned New York orchestra) began playing.

The Repaz Band of Williamsport was there and gave a concert every half hour. This band is known all over Pennsylvania as one of the best musical organization in the state, and every time they began playing a very large and appreciative audience would gather around to hear the music.

We were certainly glad to see that not a drunken man was allowed on the grounds. One fellow from down Nittany Valley who was the guy that caused so many disturbances on the 4th of July was there and he started in at his pranks but was quickly put off the grounds by the policemen. Outside of this one drunk every thing passed off smoothly and every one had a royal, good time.

The main features of the day was the great game of ball between Renova and Philipsburg. This alone attracted thousands of people. The game was a dandy up until the 5th inning when Renova seemed to go right up and fell to pieces. The boys from the other end of the county put it to the lumbermen good and plenty and when the game ended the score stood 17—3 in favor of Philipsburg.

The umpire of the game was Dr. Robinson from State College and when he made a decision he stuck to er and no one could make him change, Clark manager and captain of the Philipsburg team tried to scare Doc after he had called a fowl on one of the mountain boys, and it was up to Robinson to tell him a few things—which he did. Robinson knows the game where Clark is just in the C class. The line up of the team was as follows:

DEATH OF JOHN MUSSER

Died in the Bellefonte Hospital Sunday Evening.

On Sunday evening the spirit life of John H. Musser passed into the Great Beyond. About ten days ago he was taken to the hospital where he received an operation from which he never recovered.

The body was taken to Naginey's undertaking establishment and from there will be taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Miller at the toll gate where the funeral will be held on Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. The services will be in charge of Gregg Post No. 95 as he was an old soldier. He will be buried with honors of war.

John Musser besides being an old soldier was a man who was highly respected by all who knew him. He always had a good kind word for every one. He was a little rough in his way but all who knew him thought well of him. He was known by his old friends as "Devil John."

He was born at Aaronsburg and was a son of the late Andrew Musser of that place. He was married in 1861 to Miss Eliza Pennington daughter of Isaac Pennington of Pleasant Gap. His wife preceeded him to the grave nine years ago.

He is survived by two sons Henry of Colfax Iowa and John of California, also three sisters and two brothers, Mrs. John Reeser, and Louise of Snow Shoe and a sister at Huntingdon, James of Bellefonte and Samuel of Kansas City Mo. Quaker services were held at the Miller home after which the post took charge of the body.

Snow Shoe to be a Borough.

And now, to wit, August 16, 1907, upon due consideration of the petition, after a full hearing and investigation of the case presented by said petition to incorporate the town of Snow Shoe, and of the evidence adduced by the petitioners, and by the exceptants and protestants, find that the conditions prescribed by law have been complied with, and, believing it to be expedient to grant the prayer of the applicants, the Court doth hereby order and decree that the town of Snow Shoe be incorporated into a Borough, in conformity with the prayer of the petitioners, (as modified in the description contained hereinbelow;) that the corporate style and title thereof shall be "The Borough of Snow Shoe," and that they shall be entitled to all the rights and immunities provided by law; that the boundaries thereof as follows; to wit.

And that the annual borough election shall be held at the Budinger Hall, the present voting place in said borough, on the third Tuesday of February in accordance with, and subject to all the provisions of the laws regulating township elections, so far as applicable; and the borough is hereby declared and adjudged to be a separate election and school district.

And the Court further decrees and fixes the first election in said borough for the election of such borough officers as are provided by law, at Budinger's Hall, the present voting place in said borough, on Tuesday the 17th day of September, 1907, between the hours of seven o'clock a. m. and seven o'clock p. m. of said day and designate and appoint S. R. McCartney to give due notice of said election and the manner thereof as provided by law, and further decrees that Grant Kissling shall be Judge, and John Tobin and Harry Reeser be Inspectors of said election.

By Court,

Ellis L. Orvis,

P. J.

Drowned in the Black Moshannon.

On Wednesday evening a telephone message reached this office stating that James A. Lucas was drowned in the Black Moshannon near Hoovers place.

While in swimming with a number of other young men about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon young Lucas was attacked with the cramp and before assistance could be rendered him he was gone. The searching party found the body about 6 o'clock Wednesday evening. James a Lucas was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Lucas and was held in high esteem by his many associates. He was 19 years of age.

PHILIP PARTRIDGE KILLED

At Old Orchard Beach Maine a Student at State.

A SPLENDID YOUNG MAN

Graduated Last June from Penna. State College He was Sigma Chi man, and A Member of The Thespians.

WAS TO HAVE BEEN MARRIED

The fire at Old Orchard, Maine, which resulted in the loss of two lives and $80,000 worth of property, also terminated in death a pretty romance.

Philip Partridge, son of the Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge, of the Fourth Avenue Baptist church of Pittsburg, and Miss Alice Minard of Easton, were engaged to be married and were spending their vacations together at Kennebunk, near Old Orchard.

Seeing the glare in the sky, they drove over to see if they could be of any assistance. Their carriage was struck by a Boston and Maine train near the outskirts of Kennebunk, and the young man was instantly killed. His fiancee was severely injured and was taken to the hospital at Biddeford, where it is reported she is in a serious condition.

Philip Partridge graduated in June, last from the Pennsylvania State College as a mechanical engineer. He went to State College four years ago from the University of Cincinnati. As a member of the varsity foot ball team he was prominent in athletic circles and was a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. On numerous occasions he had visited in this city where he was well known socially.

To the young athlete's courage and presence of mind, brilliantly noticeable during his college days in many a hard fought foot ball struggle, Miss Minard probably owes her life. As the vehicle reached the lonely crossing and he realized a collision was inevitable, as cooly as if his fellow-students were massed and giving their favorite yell, "Rah! Rah! Rah! Penn State! Penn State! Partridge Partridge, Partridge!" he lifted his companion from her seat of danger next to the engine and interposed his own athletic frame. As a result of this act of bravery, the locomotive hit him and it was his body that saved his companion from immediate death.

Partridge was born in Norwich, Chenange county, N. Y., where his father had his first charge, a little over 24 years ago. During his father's pastorate in Cincinnati, he attended the University of Cincinnati, where he won his "C" on account of his foot ball powers. When Dr. Partridge accepted the call to the Fourth Avenue church of Lock Haven, a little over four years ago, following the wish of his parents, the young athlete entered Pennsylvania State College, at State College, Pa., where he was graduated last spring in the mechanical engineering course in the class of 1907.

During his four years at State College he was generally conceded by all his fellow students to be the handsomest fellow in the school, and there are but few girls who ever visited the institution who do not treasure some pleasant remembrance of the gallant treatment extended by the young collegian.

Young Partridge was as popular with his fellow students as he was with the girls as he was a splendid student and a jolly good fellow. Besides holding the respect of his fellow students for his congeniality, he was the recipient of their heartfelt admiration for his athletic record. Although he was never the star of the team, he was a good, consistent player, which fact was thoroughly appreciated.

Many a time when his steady work was largely instrumental for the wrath of victory being laid at the foot of the Mountain Lion, his name was tagged to the end of the Penn State locomotive cheer.

He was one of the prime movers in all the social affairs of his college, and besides being a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity, he was also a member of the Thespians, the dramatic club of the college, and that he was the best amateur actor in school was proved by the fact that he was the leading man in the shows of this club during his junior and senior years.

About the middle of July when his father and his family left to spend a vacation at the summer home, at Kennebunk Beach, the young graduate gaily accompanied them, resolved to have another brief respite of pleasure before settling down to face the world at his chosen occupation. It was the intention of the family to return home shortly and young Partridge had expected to start work about September 1.

LOCK HAVEN'S MURDER.

Jacob Miller Confined in a Steel Cage.

Jacob Miller, who shot and fatally wounded Hamilton Mayer near Cross Fork Saturday night, is now confined in one of the steel cages in the Lock Haven jail, where he will remain until taken into court to stand trial for murder in the first degree. The session of court at which the trial will occur will be held in the third week of October. Miller does not appear to realize the seriousness of the crime with which he is charged and yesterday asked to have his attorney summoned so that he could arrange to secure his release on bail. He was informed that no bail will be accpted. W. C. Kress, Esq., has been retained as counsel for the prisoner.

At the hearing before Alderman Anthony the principal witness was John A. Baines, who was with Mayer when the fatal shot was fired. Attorney Kress was particular to learn from the witness whether when he and Mayer met Miller on the road, in the buggy, it was Miller who stopped first, or Mayor and Baines, but the witness was positive that Miller stopped first. The latter was in an open buggy without a top, and after the conversation started, turned around, placing his knees on the seat and faced Mayer who was behind the buggy. Baines said he didn't hear the first words which passed between the two men, but heard Miller ask Mayer why he pulled him off the hay rigging. A few more words passed between the two, Mayer saying "Jakey boy, if you want to fight, I can lick you." Miller then called Mayer vile names, when the latter struck at Miller, but the witness would not swear positively that Mayer hit Miller at that time, as it was quite dark and he could not see. Then Miller pulled out the weapon and fired three shots. Mayer immediately crawled onto the buggy and pulled Miller out, starting down the road with him toward the justice's office striking him several times. As they walked along, with Baines coming some distance behind, Miller kept asking Mayer to let loose of him and called so loudly for help that his cries were heard at the hotel and even farther. But Mayer held on and continued to strike Miller until he became too week, when Justice Emig met the couple and took Miller, while Baines and other led Mayer into Sanbach's hotel and placed him on a chair and later on a couch. The witness said Mayer had no weapon on his person, and when asked by Mr. Kress how he knew this, Baines said because he removed Mayer's clothes at Sanback's hotel, and found no weapon of any kind. In answer to the attorney's further questioning, Baines said he saw nothing that would warrant Miller in shooting Mayer. The witness further replied that Mayer weighed 175 or 180 pounds, was five feet, ten inches tall, of stout build and was an able man; that he had been in fights before and was a good fighter. Mr. Kress intimated to the witness that Miller was no match for Mayer, but the witness said said the men were pretty evenly matched, and that Miller could put up a good fight. Mr. Kress then said to the witness, "If Mayer hadn't gone up to the buggy there would not have been any trouble." to which the reply was made. "Yes, there would have been trouble."

Dr. Bruner, one of the witnesses at the hearing stated that peritonitis had set in before the wounded man reached the hospital. In answer to the question "What would have been the effect of operation if performed a few hours after the shooting?" Dr. Bruner said he was unable to say positively. Attorney Kress then asked him what the effect was of hauling Mayer from Cross Fork to Renovo, a distance of sixteen miles across the mountain. The physician said it would have a tendency to distribute the contents of the bowels in the peritoneal cavity.

The "Willows" Deserted.

The gay young crowd of married folks from Altoona who have been camping at the Willows the past ten days broke camp Saturday and went home. The crowd was composed of the following ladies and gentlemen Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Elliott and three children, Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Boffenmyer and one child, Mr. and Mrs. Olmas and two children and Mrs. Joseph Lose and son.

AMERICAN FLEET

Leaves Manila for Visit to Japan.

MEETS AT YOKOHAMA

The Vessels are to Return to the Pacific Coast by Way of Island Empire and will pay Their Respects.

FIRST AMERICAN SQUDRON TO JAPAN.

Manila, August 17th.—Much regret has been caused, particularly among Americans and the business element here, by the departure of the American warships for Japan The Raleigh and the Cincinnati left Cavite on August 3rd and the Colorado and the West Virginia, the Maryland and the Pennsylvania on Saturday last. The program was that the vessels should meet at Yokohama, where colliers were to await them.

Instructions for the squadron have been marked with a litttle indecision. First the American squadron were to return to the Pacific coast via Japan. Then the order was cancelled and finally renewed. The officers were rather astonished by all this backing and filling, but they believe their visit is intended to the Pacific by showing the confidence of the United States in the friendship of Japan.

Nevertheless some of the officers are dubious regarding the wisdom of visiting Japan just now, citing as their reason the possibility of an accident similar to the Maine affair, which might occur owing to the hatred of some individual excited by the radical publications in the Tokio journals.

The election to the assembly of the fire-eating element and the parade here on Sunday with Katipunan banners, showing the opposition of a body of the natives to America, accentuate the need of a powerful army and navy.

THE GAME ON SATURDAY.

Between Fillmore and the Coleville Professionals.

On Saturday afternoon the Fillmore base ball team crossed bats with the Coleville Professional and what the boys from the farm did to the "Colverines" was enough.

It seems as though that little Fillmore team although loaded for bear has been a winner all season and when our fellows went up against them at the Meadow Brook Park on Saturday they swept them aside like a Kansas tornado. The score was 12-5 but that was plenty as the "Farmers" said it was just a nice practice game. Our boys deserve credit for a whole lot of hard work but they had no system to their playing and that was the reason they lost the game. Stover-Fulton and Meyers did all in their power to get the fellows together and made some excellent plays themselves but they didn't seem to have any support. Then on the other hand Fillmore came down here with a bunch of State College fellows. Players who are at the game all the time, and no wonder they side swiped our fellows as they did. The line up was as follows:

Coleville		Fillmore
Fullton	c	Witmer
Billett	p	Fulton
Mosebarger
Myers	1st b	Sowers
Stover	2nd b	Taylor
Hartsock	3rd b	Tressler
Keeler	s s	Snyder
Grubb	l f	Tressler
F. Billett	c f	Crust

Appointed Mechanical Engineer.

Budd Harper son of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Harper was appointed instructor of the Mechanical Engineering Department at State College. He received his appointment on Thursday. This is quite an honor for Budd and we extend to him our heartiest congratulations. He is a very bright young man and this appointment to this important position shows that his work at this college in the past years has been appreciated. We wish him unbounde success.

BELLEFONTE BOY IN TROUBLE.

Earnest Wagner Shot Under Suspicious Circumstances.

Following is an article taken from a recent issue of the Albuquerque Morning Journal, printed at Cerrillas, New Mexico, which contains an account of the shooting, by a ranchman of Earnest Wagner, son of John A. Wagner, of this place. Some time ago the young man went West from Bellefonte, and quite a number of our citizens will doubtless remember him and has since been living in the Western states. The accident is unfortunate, as it may result in the crippling for life of the young man, if it does not prove fatal.

Ranchman Sweeney, an old man about 65 years of age, who has been living about three miles above Isleta in the valley below here for a long time, arrived in the city about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon driving a wagon half filled with straw on which lay, moaning with pain, seventeen-year-old Ernest Wagner, of Bellefonte, Pa., whom Sweeney shot with a 38 calibre revolver through both legs barely an hour after he had hired the boy to work on the farm.

The shooting occurred about 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon, the boy having gone to work at 12. The boy was taken to the office of Dr. E. N. Wilson, and after his wounds were dressed by Drs. Wilson and W. M. Sheridan, he was put in bed in a room in the Occidental building. Meanwhile Mr. Sweeney swore out a warrant against the boy for theft in Judge Craig's court. As the boy refused to make any complaint against Sweeney the latter returned to his ranch, saying he would be willing to come to the city any time he was wanted.

The boy is in a rather bad way and may have to have one leg amputated. The bone of the right leg was shattered above the knee and the bone of the left leg was punctured cleanly by a bullet.

The old man before returning home appeared before Judge Craig but as there was no charge against him, he was allowed to go. He said he would be willing to take the boy back to the ranch and take care of him and pay his expenses while he is recovering. The old man appeared to be rather remorseful for what he had done. He says the boy appeared at his house and wanted work, whereupon he hired him for $15 a month. "I went out to cut hay," said Sweeney, "and told the boy to split wood while I was gone. At 1 o'clock I came back and saw the boy coming out of the house with my revolver. I had considerable money in the house and the boy had apparently been ransacking the place. I took the gun away from him and as I did so he hit me a clip alongside the head." Here the old man exhibited a fresh scar. "I then pointed the gun at his leg and while we were scuffling fired twice."

Wagner's story of the shooting is as follows:

"I went to Sweeney's house at noon and asked for work. He put me to work cutting wood. He acted rather suspiciously, and I secured a revolver. After working a while I went to the house, and he said:

"Give me my gun.'

"I handed him the gun, and he shot me. I walked away from the house, about ten feet, and he shot me again. After that I staggered a few feet and fell. Sweeney then hitched up his team and brought me to the city."

The boy stoutly denied that he had done anything that would cause the old rancher to shoot him.

Sweeney, when he reached Fletcher's ranch below the city, telephoned to Under-sheriff Heyn to meet him at the office of Dr. Wilson, which the latter did. Sweeney told him the story of the shooting.

It will be impossible to get at the straight of the matter until the boy is free from the influence of opiates given him by the physicians. It is the general impression that the old man became excited while wrestling with the equally excited boy and shot him. The boy is not a bad looking young fellow.

Mansfield Will Never be able to Act Again.

Lyon Mountain, N. Y., Aug. 15.—Richard Mansfield is not improving in health and those close to him reluctantly admit their conviction that the actor will never again be seen on the stage. Arrangements have been made to take Mr. Mansfield to his summer home near New London, Conn. next Sunday, if at that time he is able to make the journey. Mr. Mansfield's present condition was revealed yesterday to visitors at the cottage at Lowes Saranac Lake, where the actor has been most of the time since his return from abroad.

DEATH FOR THE KOREAN

The Supreme Court to Take Drastic Action

ONE TO BE HANGED.

Prince Yi, Nephew of the Emperor who is now in New York says that the Japanese are Responsible for Severe Sentence.

OTHERS TO LIFE IMPRISONMENT.

Seoul, August 15th.—The Korean Supreme Court has passed sentence upon the members of the Hague deputation. Yi Seng Sol has been condemned to be hanged and Yi Wi Chow and Yi Chun have been sentenced to imprisonmet for life.

New York, August 15th.—News that he had been sentenced to death and that his associates in the ill-fated mission to The Hague had been condemned to life imprisonment, was conveyed to Prince Yi, nephew of the new emperor of Korea, at the Broadway Central Hotel here today.

"The Japanese, of course, are responsible for this," the Prince commented. "I do not blame them so much, however, as I blame the traitorous Koreans who have sold themselves to the Japanese. The only effect of this action against me will be to add energy and enthusiam to the work of patriotic Koreans for their country.

"This order for my execution will certainly be carried out if I ever go within Korean and Japanese jurisdiction. It will be mere suicide for me to return to Korea.

If I could gain anything for my country by putting my head in the Japanese noose I should be glad to do so, but I cannot see that I should serve any good purpose by doing so now, and it is not my purpose to return to Korea. I shall keep up my work for Korea here and look for greater energy and determination in support of that work as a result of the sentence of death pronounced upon me."

Prince Yi recently sent to President Roosevelt a request for a private, unofficial audience. The prince has received a reply, in which the President stated that he would have no time at present to grant such an audience.

Prince Yi said he accepted this as a declination from the President to see him, and would make no further effort in that direction at present.

They Make Your Mouth Water

Mr. James Sommers who is known throughout the town for his excellent cooking and dainty dishes and whose services seem to be in great demand for most all social functions in Bellefonte has started an establishment where all these good things he makes like saratoga chips, salads of all kinds, soft shell crabs, and many other good things. Today he received a shipment of soft shell crabs from Baltimore and has made a fresh supply of Saratoga chips, and for a nice lunch at the Park tonight something of this kind would be just the thing. Mr. Sommers can be found at his home on St. Paul street.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath.

In any condition of the female system, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of this "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Women suffering from diseases of long standing, are invited to consult Doctor Pierce by letter, free. All correspondence is held as strictly private and sacredly confidential. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address as above.

ANOTHER SET OF BOYS IN TROUBLE.

Salona Citizens Capture Eight "Smarties"

At the combined picnic of the Methodist and Lutheran Sunday schools of Salona, which was held at Hecla park Wednesday some young lords of Bellefonte, who are camping on the Hecla park grounds, thought they would get smart and help themselves to a well filled basket of good things, which belonged to one of the Salona party, but fortunately one of the Salona ladies viewed their act from a distance and quickly informed the owner of the basket, J. C. Walker, who immediately gave chase accompanied by several of his male companions and overtook and captured one of the party in a corn field who had the basket in his possession. They had already taken out or eaten the delicacies the basket contained.

Mr. Walker and his companions brought the fellows into the station and telephoned to W. Harrison Walker, esq., of Bellefonte, who secured the services of a constable and swore out a warrant for the arrest of the whole party if they could be rounded up, and by the time the constable arrived at Hecla, the Salona party had eight fellows under guard whom they turned over to the officer, who took them to Bellefonte, where they were arranged before an alderman and placed under $500 bail for a hearing. CASTORIA.
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. The Kind You Have Always Bought

Smith Wins in Rapid Fire.

The Fifth regiment team was not capable of winning first place but it was evident that its ability in the use of a rifle is advancing instead of going back and by an effort to triumph with the krag it may eventually land on top. The scores made yesterday by the members of the Fifth regiment team as follows:

Major Fee, 200 yards, 23; 500 yards, 22, and 600 yards, 25. Sergeant Ebersole, 26, and 600 yards, 27. Corporal Lightner, company C, 200 yards, 26; 500 yards, 28, and 600 yards 34. Artificer Starry, company D, 200 yards, 25; 500 yards, 24, and 600 yards 28. Rapid fire marksmanship was Smith, company B, 46; Lightner, 43; Ebersole, 36, and Fee 25.

From air distances seven shots were fired and out of a possible 140, the Fifth's team at 200, 500 and 600 yards respectively averaged 102, 100 and 104, which is considered remarkably good.

Everybody Pay up

A negro preacher, whose supply of hominy and bacon was running low, decided to take radical steps to impress upon his flock the necessity for contributing liberally to the church exchequer.

Accordingly, at the close of the sermon he made an impressive pause, and then preceeded as follows:

"I hab found it necessary, on account ob de hard times an' de gineral deficiency ob de circulatin' mejum in connection wid dis chu'ch, t' introduce ma new ottermatic c'election box. It is so arranged dat a half dollah or quahtah falls on a red plush cushion without noise; a nickel will ring a small bell distinctually heard by de congregation, an' a suspendah-button, ma fellow mawtels, will fiah off a pistol, so you can gov'n yo'selves accordingly. Let the c'election now p'oceed, w'ile I takes off ma hat an' gibs out a hymn."

Mrs. J. E. Ward Entertained

On Thursday evening Mrs. J. E Ward entertained about 25 guests with a porch party in honor of a number of ladies who are her guests consisting of Mrs. Joanna Foster wife of the late Major Foster, Miss Margaret Foster Mrs. William Whiting wife of Prof Whiting, Mrs. H. B. Lauman, Mrs. Charles S. Humrich, Mrs. G. W. Cook all of Carlisle and Mrs. C. T. Aikens of Selinsgrove and Miss Elizabeth Ward of Pine Grove Mills.

The large porch was beautifully decorated for the occasion. Mrs. Ward will entertain nearly the same crowd of ladies at dinner this evening at Hecla Park.

MURDERED HIS WIFE

Bloody Deed Enacted in a New York Home.

DAUGHTER KILLED HIM

The Husband and Wife had been Separated and on the Former's Appearance a Quarrel.

THE DAUGHTER WAS ARRESTED

New York, August 16.—George Wasser, a German, fifty-seven years old, murdered his wife and was in turn slain by his daughter, at the home of the woman in Harlem Wednesday. Wasser fired upon his wife and then exchanged shots with the daughter. The latter was not wounded. Mrs. Wasser soon succumbed to her injuries and the husband died a little later.

The daughter was arrested. She asserted that her father had persistently practiced cruelties upon his family. On entering the flat where the woman lived Wasser upbraided his wife for having him arrested because he annoyed her. Then he shot the wife.

Adeline Langlotz, the widowed daughter, sent a younger sister, Annie, to the next room to bring a revolver. The little girl obeyed and Mrs. Langlotz fired several shots at her father as he flew from room to room.

Wasser turned several times in his flight and fired at his daughter. He fell in the parlor.

The noise attracted a crowd and the police arrived.

Mrs. Longlotz said her parents had been separated several years, and that recently Wasser had tried to assault Annie. He was arrested and convicted.

Mrs. Langlotz, when arraigned before a magistrate said: "My father was shooting at my mother, so I sent Annie to fetch a revolver. Father was still firing at mother when I was given the pistol, and it was not until I saw the burning clothes on mother's breast and heard her cries that I fired at the man. I fired four shots at him as he sneaked through the rooms. I don't care what happens to him or me." The magistrate directed that a probation officer find some home for Mrs. Langlotz and her sister until the coroner needed her. He said he would not send her to prison but would aid her all he could.

To the Bellefonte Dairyman.

The following is the analytical reports covering the milk supply of this city, and analyzed by Dr. Wm. Frear. These samples were purchased by a sworn agent of the Dairy and Food Bureau. In connection with the subject it might be well to explain that the common standard for milk in this State is three and one-half per cent, while that for cream is placed at sixteen per cent.

Milk containing three per cent and over of butter fat is ordinarily regarded as of normal quality, while cream containing sixteen per cent is also regarded as being of ordinary quality.

The United States standard for milk is four per cent butter fat and that for cream is placed at eighteen per cent.

The following samples of milk and cream were taken by Agent H. L. Banzhoff from the Dairymen in Bellefonte, Centre Co., Pa. July 26.

A Close Shave.

W. W. Gephart, superintendent of the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania, volunteered to take W. A. Moore, superintendent of the Nittany Iron company, to Mill Hall in his motor car. Wishing to show supervisor W. R. Gainsfort where he wanted some repairs made he took him along as well as James Clark, stenographer, for the purpose of taking notes.

The four left the Bellefonte station immediately after the afternoon passenger train. Mr. Gephart and Mr. Gainsfort occupied the seat, Mr. Moore sat in front and Mr. Clark on the rear of the car.

Everything went all right until they reached Mackeyville. There they were close to the train as it pulled out of the station and were going at about a thirty mile clip when, just as they rounded a curve within one hundred feet of a crossing, a farmer drove on to the railroad track and seeing the motor car coming stopped his horses right on the track. Gephart immediately threw on the reverse speed and attempted to apply the brakes but they wouldn't work. Seeing what he believed an inevitable collision ahead of them he called to the balance of the party to jump and himself leaped from the car, James Clark following suit. Mr. Moore and Mr. Gainsfort stuck to their seats and their escape was little short of a miracle. When the farmer saw the motor car approaching he naturally was so frightened he stopped his horses right on the track and attempted to back them out of the way but the time was too short to enable him to do so and when the frightened animals saw the car running apparently right into them they gave one lung backward then reared, standing straigh up on their hind feet and in the short space of time they were in that position the motor car with its two occupants shot safely by them and was stopped one hundred feet or so further on by the reverse power. Of course neither of the men who stuck to the car were injured in the least, neither was James Clark, but Superintendent Gephart jumped on a stone and twisted his ankle so that he has been walking with a cane ever since and at the same time explaining his crippled condition to his friends by saying that he bumped into something the other day.

In speaking of the accident Mr. Moore says it is all right for a little man to tell a big man to jump from a machine that is running thirty miles an hour but it is another thing for the big man to jump, then be smiles faintly as he remarks that they got through all right.

The Ambitious boy.

A boy at seventeen can partically determine for himself whether he will be a simple burden bearer for others as long as he lives, a leech on society or whether he will be a broadminded, useful and successful man. If the boy at this age has no ambition to be anybody and is content to imply let things flicker and take his chance with others just like him, frittering away his opportunities to acquire knowledge and caring only for the trivialities of life; he can make up his mind to carry a hod, ride the brake beams of a freight car or dodge the police as long as he lives, or he can resolve to be a man in the highest sense, seek every means for physical, mental and moral growth and developement and graduate into the ever widening field of utility and success. It matters little what his boyhood environment may be, if he but had the ambition and well grounded purpose he would climb out of it.

Injured at The Howard Station

While sitting on the platform at the Bald Eagle Valley railroad station at Howard Wednesday forenoon at 10 o'clock, Edward Buhse, of Tyrone, was badly injured and had a narrow escape from being killed. Bush is a brakeman on local freight, which left Lock Haven Wednesday morning for Tyrone. The train was standing near the Tyrone station while some cars were being shifted on the track which runs parallel with the platform, between which there is only about a foot of space. Buhse had his head turned in another direction at the time, and did not hear or see the string of cars coming, which knocked him off and crushed his body against the platform. It was seen that that the young man was painfully hurt and a physician was sent for, and responded in a few minutes. But before he could do anything the passenger train due in this city at 10.25 pulled in, when the injured railroader was placed on the train, was taken to to Lock Haven accompanied by the Howard physician and taken to the hospital, where it was found that his hip bone was fractured, both arms painfully scraped and bruised and his shoulder injured. He will recover.

The Man With Forty Ghosts.

A popular novelist talked with regret about the old ghost habit of the past.

"Famous painters first and famous writers afterward alike had ghosts," he said. "These ghosts were pupils, disciples. They did the basic work of the master's picture or novel, and the master polished up, put on the finishing touches and signed his name to it. This practice, indeed, still obtains in architecture. It was a practice that allowed a popular artist a manifold increase of production and consequently of income. Dumas, the elder Dumas, had no less than forty ghosts—forty intelligent young men writing away for him about D'Artagnan, Porthos, Aramis and the rest. But Dumas was reckless, and the existence of his forty ghosts became known; hence a good deal of scandal. At the height of this scandal Dumas said to a lady one night:

"'Have you read my last book, madame?'

"The lady, with a mischievous smile, replied:

"'No, M. Dumas. Have you?'"

He Felt Complimented.

A man from Philadelphia, says a writer in the Ledger of that city, was visiting in a town of very few inhabitants. One day when he was about to make a purchase he discovered that he had exhausted his small change. The shopkeeper could not break the ten dollar bill offered him, and the man went out in the main street to see how he might solve the difficulty. He asked several persons, but no one had the requisite amount for the bill. At last an old white haired, seedy negro came along. In sheer desperation the man said:

"Uncle, can you change a ten dollar bill for me?"

"Uncle" looked dazed for a moment, then his shambling figure straightened. With a doffing of the hat and a bow worthy of Chesterfield he replied, with dignity:

"No, marse, I can't change no ten dollar bill, but I done 'preciates the compliment jes' the same, sah."

Birds That Boat In Their Nests.

"The mother bird sat on her eggs at the water's edge, and when I approached she pushed off with her foot as though the nest had been a boat, and away she floated calmly down the stream."

"What you saw was a rare spectacle," said the nature student. "The bird was a grebe, the colymbus minor. She always builds on the water's edge, and her nest is always woven of aquatic plants so closely and firmly that it will float herself and her eggs without leaking. On the approach of danger the bird pushes off. Nor is she at the current's mercy during her voyage. She uses her foot as a paddle, and I have seen her steer her boat-nest with some little dexterity round a bend, landing in a quiet cove as well, say, as the average young lady waterman."

Racing at Ascot.

Racing at Ascot dates back a great number of years, and it is recorded that Queen Anne was the first royal personage to patronize the fixture, in 1711. The first and second Georges were not great patrons of the turf, but they bred race horses on a large scale in order to encourage their subjects, and George III. gave a plate of 100 guineas to be competed for. Ever since those times the great annual festival on the famous Berkshire heath has met with royal favor.

We mean dont get drunk, but if you will get drunk dont get on a Central R. R. of Pa. train or go near the Park. Because the company have decided to properly arrest every drunk on the grounds that day and prosecute them for being a nuisance.

How to Save the Peaches

State Zoologist Surface issues a warning note to peach growers. He tells them to loosen the earth about the peach trees and give them several buckets of water. "That will save their crops," says Surface. From various parts of the state complaints have been received that peaches are failing. Professor Surface attributes this to the fact that the moisture goes into the leaves.

He also says that the reports show that peaches grown on high lands are in better condition than those on low lands, for the reason that the cold weather of last spring clung to the valleys and not to the high lands.

Train Orders at Top Speed.

A dispatch from Altoona, under date of Monday, says that a new device for delivering orders to passenger and freight trainmen on the Pennsylvania, because operative at noon yesterday. To obviate the necessity for stopping trains, the trainmen will receive their orders while going at top speed. The orders will be attached to hoops, the hoops placed on poles outside the telegraph towers, and as the train shoots by, the engineer or conductor will run his arm through the hoop containing his orders and take it with him. The hoops are to be turned in to the round house at the end of the run.

Farmers Kept Figuring

In some comments on the scarcity of help on the farm, the Washington Observer truthfully observes that "in every town and every city there are always to be found young men, both healthy and strong, who are out of employment.

They will loaf the summer long unless something that just suits them turns up, and will pass up the opportunity of work on the farm that is always theirs if they want it. But many of them would rathgo to jail than turn farm laborer. Why, it is hard to understand, especially under the present wage of scale. And so it is little wonder that the farmer is kept figuring where he is to get his help in the future. Machinery nowdays is a great factor on the farm, but machinery can't do it all. A certain amount of human labor is necessary and always will be. Where is it to come from?

TARGET SHOOTING.

Rainy Day Game That May Be Played on the Dining Table.

Fig. 1 shows the target cut out of cigar box wood. A circular piece is first cut about one inch in diameter, and eight small round pieces of cardboard with the numbers 1 to 8 on them are mounted on toothpicks and grouped around it at even distances. The other ends of the toothpicks are then inserted in the sides of the circular piece of wood. The target itself is secured to a stick of wood about eight inches long, fastened to a stand, as shown in the picture. The gun consists of a paper tube, which is made by winding cardboard well covered with glue around the stem of a lead pencil. When it is dry, a piece about five inches long is cut off. One and three-quarter inches from one end make an incision about two inches long, cutting down to about one-half of the thickness of the tube. See Fig. 2.

TARGET AND GUN.

Fig. 2 shows how a piece of whalebone about six inches long is inserted, acting as the propelling power of the gun. You shoot with a wooden peg about one and one-half inches long, fitting loosely into the barrel of the gun. To give it more weight and strength insert a carpet tack in one end of the plug.

To shoot hold the gun with the right hand, pulling the whalebone back with the index finger and inserting the peg. As soon as the index finger releases the whalebone it springs forward and forces the peg out. To aim well hold the tube in such a way that the whalebone springs point downward.

THE COW'S HORN.

Information Concerning a Common but Useful Article.

Have you any conception of how useful that horn is to us? Scientifically it is known as a combination of phosphate of lime, gelatin and albumen, and, like all nature's products, the ingredients are in the right proportion to make the article useful to man, as well as to the animal that bears it.

The lime makes the horn hard, but there is just enough lime to make it hard without making it brittle, and there is just enough gelatin to make the horn easy to cut and shape. The core of the horn is bone, and to get that out the horn is soaked in water for several weeks. When the core is taken out, it is ground up and made into crucibles which are used for melting gold and silver in.

The outer end of the horn is hard and solid, and that is used for making knife handles and other things. The hollow part of the horn is soaked for half an hour or so in boiling water, when it becomes soft and may easily be split with a knife. It is then spread out flat and put between iron plates. There was a time when these horn plates were made very thin by hard pressure and used in windows and lanterns as we now use glass. They may be made quite translucent.

When horn is heated it may be molded into almost any desired form. That is the way knife handles, buttons and other articles are made.—Chicago News.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

False Economy.

Old Mr. McCann was as nice an old man
As ever Crank Soochoolong tea.
He drank it stone cold, though ever so old
(Mike McCann, please, and not the green tea).

His grandson, named Jimp, was as much of an imp
As it's possible small boy to be.
This bad little lad played tricks on grandad,
And once he played tricks on his tea.

"Grandad is so old," said this little boy bold,
"That he's lost sense of smell and of taste.
I'll just get some greens and fresh leaves of beans,
And the tea no longer we'll waste."

So Jimp tried the trick. When he found pretty quick
That grandad was still able to smell
And had plenty of taste and some muscle to waste,
He was sadder than verses can tell.
—Washington Star.

Harvard Then a College of Children.

In 1685, when elected president of Harvard, the Rev. Increase Mather refused to resign the pastorate of the North church in Boston for the sake of "forty or fifty children." Therefore he used to ride back and forth from Boston to Cambridge, charging to the college the cost of shoeing and baiting his horse and mending his saddle. Many of these students were but twelve or thirteen years old.—"Individual Training In Our Colleges," by Clarence F Birdseye.

Naming the Baby.

They were choosing a name for the new baby.

"I think Esmeralda is too sweet," said one of the infant's aunts.

The Epitaph of Mary Lyon.

In the grounds of Mount Holyoke seminary, overlooking the beautiful valley through which the Connecticut flows seaward, is a monument to Mary Lyon, the Massachusetts teacher who founded the college. On it is inscribed a sentence of her own. "There is nothing in the universe that I am afraid of but that I shall not know and do all my duty."

Study of Man.

The only school for the study of human nature is the world. The only text books are the works of men like Shakespeare, Hugo, Cervantes, Sterne and other students who learned in that school. But the effectual study of human nature demands from the student a vast fund of love and sympathy. You will never get admitted into the heart of a fellow creature unless you go as a friend.—Robert Blatchford in Clarion.

For the Toilet.

While you are preparing to retire for the night health and beauty sleep, do you wash your face thoroughly?

It is absolutely necessary that the grime and soil accumulated on the countenance during the day be removed—that is, if you are doing things to keep your complexion in good order.

Of course you take a bath before retiring as a means of better rest and consequent good health. Certainly along with the bath you wash your face, but perhaps you dash it with cold water, while telling yourself that "the cream will do the rest."

This is a mistake. Wash the face thoroughly and then apply the cream. Wipe off the first application of cream and you'll take off more grime with it. Then rub cream into the cuticle to nourish the flesh. Keeping the face as clean as possible is first rate assistance in removing blemishes and a great help in keeping them off.

For bath purposes the flesh brush should take the place of flannel. Indeed, the vigorous use of the flesh brush or glove may be recommended as an effective substitute for a bath where the latter is not at hand, as the rough glove or brush cleanses the skin of small particles which are apt to cling to it from the clothing that is in daily contact with the body.

A HINT FOR TRAMPERS.

Chamois Heels to Slip Over the Stockings.

Walking in the mountains seems to be more destructive to the stockings than any other form of exercise, even bicycling. The change of grades appears to bring special stress upon the heels and necessitates darning in holiday time, when darning is most obnoxious. Having had experience with this, we were delighted to discover at a drug store some chamois heels which could be slipped over the stockings when tramping and saved a great deal of wear upon them. These are not always to be found, but they can be easily made at home if some care is taken in cutting a pattern and carefully fitting it to the person who is to wear the heels. For the pattern cut a piece of paper five inches square, marking it at the top and bottom. Fold it across the middle, and on the fold make a cut an inch and a quarter deep from each edge. From the point thus reached cut a curve to the two lower corners. Fold the lower corners over on the outside so that they almost meet the upper corners. Fit this to the heel and when properly shaped cut out the chamois, stitching it smoothly and firmly in form and adding two elastic bands to reach over the ankle from the two sets of corners. There are such differences in the sizes of heels that the pattern must necessarily be somewhat modified for different ages, but if properly made and carefully worn these heels are very useful.—J. H. in Good Housekeeping.

cool roll out, using just sufficient flour to make this possible, to the thickness of about one and one-half inches. Cut out into rounds the size of a tumbler, and with a smaller cutter remove a piece from the top of each, as though making patties. Egg and breadcrumb them very neatly, place in a frying basket and fry to a light brown. Fill the cavities with cooked peas nicely seasoned and tossed in butter and place the piece removed from the center on top of the peas to form a lid.

The Boomerang and Its Inventors.

The boomerang is rather a puzzle. One might think that the highest laws of mathematics had been laid under contribution in the perfecting of it. The convexity on one side, the flatness on the other and the sharp, knifelike edge on the inside of the convexity have the air of having been carefully thought out. Yet the people who invented this singular weapon cannot count higher than five and are destitute of all the arts and amenities of life. Theirs is perhaps the lowest plane of human life. Some people have assumed that the boomerang was the creation of an older and higher civilization, but for this there is no evidence. It must be the product of an age long empirical use of throwing weapons.—London Spectator.

Weak Women

To weak and ailing women, there is at least one way to help. But with that way, two treatments, must be combined. One is local, one is constitutional, but both are important, both essential.
Dr. Shoop's Night Cure is the Local.
Dr. Shoop's Restorative, the Constitutional.
The former—Dr. Shoop's Night Cure—is a topical mucous membrane suppository remedy, while Dr. Shoop's Restorative is wholly an internal treatment. The Restorative reaches throughout the entire system, seeking the repair of all nerve, all tissue, and all blood ailments.
The "Night Cure", as its name implies, does its work while you sleep. It soothes sore and inflamed mucous surfaces, heals local weaknesses and discharges, while the Restorative, eases nervous excitement, gives renewed vigor and ambition, builds up wasted tissues, bringing about renewed strength, vigor, and energy. Take Dr. Shoop's Restorative—Tablets or Liquid—as a general tonic to the system. For positive local help, use as well

GOOD ADVICE.

What to Do When Things Are Lost In Public Places.

When on leaving a theater, lecture hall, etc., you discover that some valuable has disappeared, do not lose your head immediately. There are, after all is said, many more honest people in this world than dishonest, and the chances are that if you go about it properly you will recover the article.

First of all, register your loss at the box office or superintendent's room. Give your name and address plainly, being sure that they are correctly taken down, and if you wish to offer any reward for its return name the amount. Be sure to leave money for the management to telephone you if their search is rewarded and give your telephone number. Then ask for some one, or if this is not granted get permission yourself, to search the part of the house in which you were sitting.

If after a day you have no word of the loss, advertise in at least one morning and one evening paper, naming the articles explicitly, so as to avoid confusion. If you wish, you may name the theater as the place to which it is to be returned. Most places are kind and courteous in such matters and only too anxious to help you in your search. If they return the valuable to you, do not forget that the man who has acted as their agent is worthy of thanks at least if you do not wish to reward him in any more substantial way.

And, finally, if the lost article was a piece of jewelry it would be well to have a jeweler make the clasp stronger to avoid further loss.

THE VOICE ADMIRED.

Fast talking and loud talking ruin the voice.

It is the well poised woman who receives admiration and respect.

A shrill, parrotlike voice makes the most beautiful woman a trying companion.

Train the ear to recognize pleasant sounding, agreeable voices and listen to your own critically.

Just as the touch of a woman's hand should be a warm caress, so should her voice fall upon the ear with pleasantness.

The voice that is heard without raising the natural speaking tones is the well modulated voice which impresses one with its calm and its sincerity.

A course of instruction in vocal culture will create a decided change many times, but a vast improvement may be found in deep breathing and careful attention.

Tomato Fritters.

Choose ripe but firm tomatoes, not too small. Peel them by dipping for an instant into boiling water; cut in slices half an inch thick. Make a frying batter with half a pound of flour, two eggs, half a pint of milk and a little salt; mix the flour smoothly with the milk, add the yolks of eggs and salt. If possible, allow the batter to stand for an hour or two. Then beat the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth and add them to the other ingredients; carefully dry each slice of tomato, coat it in the batter and fry till brown in boiling fat; drain on paper and serve very hot.

The Linen Shower.

When giving a linen shower send out the invitation on paper which looks like hemstitched linen. It is best for the guests to meet before calling upon the bride elect and arrange what presents are to be sent. No difference what marked pieces you give the young woman, the monogram should be with her maiden initials.

Using the Blotter.

A woman was trying to lift a big blot of ink from a letter with a piece of blotting paper, with the usual result of making the blot bigger and uglier than it was at first. "Let me show you how to do that," said her friend. "I learned the trick in a stationer's shop in London last year. You just moisten the corner of the blotter first, to get it started, and then apply it to the ink spot. There! Isn't it wonderful how clean it takes it all up?"

For Sore Throats.

For an ordinary sore throat, with loss of voice or huskiness, dip a folded handkerchief in cold water. Encircle the neck with the wet handkerchief and cover it with several folds of old flannel. One night's application is usually sufficient to relieve slight cases.

Smiling.

When the weather suits you not,
Try smiling.
When your coffee isn't hot,
Try smiling.
When your neighbors don't do right
Or your relatives all fight,
Sure it's hard, but then you might
Try smiling.
Doesn't change the things, of course,
Just smiling.
But it cannot make them worse—
Just smiling.
And it seems to help your case,
Brightens up a gloomy place;
Then it sort o' rests your face—
Just smiling.

White spots on furniture caused by putting down a hot jug or cup should be rubbed at once with a little oil of some kind, linseed for choice, though paraffin or sweet oil is nearly as good. Leave the oil on some hours if possible and then polish.

His Wife (writing)—Which is proper, "disillusioned" or "disillusionized?" Her Husband—Oh, just say "married" and let it got at that.

Almost any stain can be removed by rubbing butter well into it if it is immediately washed with pure water and soap.

Troubles of the stomach, Heart or Kidneys, are merely symptoms of a deeper ailment. Don't make the common error of is treating symptom only. Symptomt treatment is treating the result of your ailment the cause. Weak Stomach nerves—the inside nerves—mean Stomach weakness, always. And the Heart, and Kidneys, as well, have their controlling or inside nerves. Weaken these nerves, and you inevitably have weak vital organs. Here is where Dr. Shoop's Restoartive has made its fame. No other remedy even claims to treat the "inside nerves". Also for bloating, biliousness, bad breath or complexion, use Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Write me today for sample and free Book. are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of Indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—Charley Rocky has taken Frank Holderman's place in Joseph's store.

—There was a large picnic at Hecla Park Saturday from Montoursville.

—Mrs. Thomas Caldwell who has been so seriously ill is very much better.

—Philip Hagg fell Saturday from the hay mow in the Hagg House barn and broke his arm.

—Leonard Shook, the youngest son of Mrs. James M. Shook, is quite seriously ill at his home on Allegheny St.

—250 people attended the concert and dance at Hecla Park on Friday. The crowds are getting larger every night.

—Miss Helen Bible and Mr. Clarence Garbrick sang a beautiful duet in the St. John's Episcopal church Sunday morning.

—The "Devils Auction" theatrical company passed through Bellefonte Sunday evening on their way to Philadelphia.

—The Railroad Co. is putting in a telephone booth at White Rock siding for the freight train crew to report off the block and in the clear.

—Lee Strubie who has been so ill with fever in the Atlanta Georgia hospital is getting better, so the latest reports from that institution say.

—On Saturday night a little son of Mr. Harry Eberhart took very sick in Joseph's store. A doctor was called and the little fellow was taken to his home in a cab.

—On Saturday the driver on the Brockerhoff House bus drove his horses on the track near the station and they were very near killed by the Lewisburg train.

—The young folks from Altoona who are camping at the "Willows" are having a royal time. On Thursday evening they were out fishing and caught 20 eels and 15 suckers.

—During the absence of Conductor Rose Parker of the Bellefonte Central R. R., his place is being filled by Edward Whittaker who is courteous and kind to the many travelers on that road.

—The City Band at Lock Haven give a sacred concert at Agar Park every Sunday afternoon. What a delightful affair it would be if the Coleville Band would do the same at Hecla Park.

—Harlem Saylor says he has corn out at his place that is 11 feet 10 inches tall and still growing. He had to use a step ladder to get the corn off. The seed corn he got from Mr. Crittenden.

—"If a man can write a better book, preach a better sermon or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, though he build his house in the woods, the world would make a beaten path to his door."

—Anthony Gatens delivered a splendid sermon to a bunch of fellows in front of the Bush House on Saturday. Some times Anthony gets a little off but at other times he can give some splendid advice that would be well to follow out.

—This week Benjamin Bradley, John Derstine, Win Miller and others are engaged in making improvements on the second floor of the Stone School house. A large room has been divided into two rooms and other small rooms have been thrown into these.

—Mrs. Andrew Mott and family are Camping up Spring Creek.

—400 people traveled over the Bellefonte Central Tuesday morning for Hecla Park.

—The Rifle Range of Co. B. at Milesburg will opened on Tuesday morning August 20th.

—Harry Young of Buffalo Run Valley died at the Bellefonte Hospital Saturday morning. The cause of his death was spinal meningitis.

—Two Milesburg boys came to town Saturday and got to much "boozerine" and the result was they landed in the cooler.

—Friday morning a team of horses belonging to the Palace livery got a little cranky and kicked around on the Diamond in great shape. The tongue of the wagon was pretty badly broken and one of the horses was bleeding from the fun they had.

—Aus in H. Johnston of Everett is now employed at the Bellefonte furnace as a budger. He is a young man who has won lots of friends since coming to the old town. He is an all around good fellow and a staunch Republican. We extend to him a cordial welcome to Bellefonte.

—The auto touring car in charge of C. D. Keefer of Tyrone, visited the Penn's Cave, Centre county on Friday, with the following party: Hon. C. O. Templeton and Mrs. Templeton, Mr. and Mrs. T. B. Shuman, Misses Jess LaPorte, Elsie Barr, Blanche Miller, May Crawford, Messrs. G. Wood Miller, W. F. Minary and F. K. Mattern.

—Messrs O. L. Vichols, E. E. Shay, J. H. Watson, J. C. Anten, H. W. Brown, W. E. Alexander, W. E. Riley, C. C. Oberlin, C. W. Bathurst, J. J. Riley, J. C. DeVictor, W. F. Conradi, Williamsport; F. C. Stoughton, Lewisburg; were a bunch of railroaders who registered at the Bush House Monday. Among them being the paymaster on the L. & T.

—A new tile floor is being put in the vacant room adjoining the Brockerhoff House entrance. It is said that the interior will be handsomely fitted up with new furniture and chairs, and that Milton Kern, the barber, will occupy the place. It will be a splendid location. Mr. Kern now conducts a prosperous business in the basement of the Garman House.

—The Philadelphia Record states that the plan of merger of the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad with the Pennsylvania has been declared operative, more than two-thirds of the outstanding stock of the Bald Eagle Valley having been deposited under the recent offer of the Pennsylvania. Assurance of still larger deposits have been received from stockholders who are now out of town upon their return.

—The outlook for the Grange Encampment and Fair, at Centre Hall, is brighter than ever. Last year there were many more persons camped on the ground than for a number of years previous, and the indications are that this year the number of campers will be largely increased. Last year every tent erected was occupied, and in order to accomodate the increase this year, additional tents have been arranged for. Camping is one of the most pleasant features of the whole scheme, as it permits a week's outing at a nominal cost.

—Probably the biggest crop of hay harvested in Centre county this year is that by the McCoy & Linn Iron company. Up to the beginning of this week they had either housed or put on stacks over one hundred four-horse loads of hay and at that time they had upwards of seventy-five loads yet to harvest, the most of which has been cut and stacked by this time. While the yield of grass per acre was not as large as on some farms in the county the total yield is undoubtedly the largest in the county, as it will be to two hundred ton.

—Mrs. Evelyn Rogers entertained with cards Saturday evening, her guests playing both bridge and flinch. Mrs. W. F. Reynolds entertained with bridge on Saturday evening in honor of Miss Haldeman, Miss Linn's guest. Miss Emily Valentine entertained with bridge at Miss Natt's on Monday evening in honor of Miss Haldeman. Mrs. Hiram Hiller entertained at the Country club Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. and Miss Haldeman. Mrs. Bogle entertained at bridge Thursday evening in honor of her house guest Mrs. Beck, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. Florence Dale entertained this morning with bridge in honor of Mrs. C. L. Burnside of Philadelphia.

—One of the most delightful social functions of the week was the reception given Thursday by Miss Emma Aiken at her mother's home on Allegheny street. And the event was made the occasion of the announcement of her engagement to Harry Spencer McNaul of Curwensville, which will terminate in their marriage on Wednesday, September 4th. The wedding will be a very unostentatious one, only the two families and a few very close friends to be present. The bride-groom-elect is not an entire stranger in Bellefonte as he has been here more or less the past year in his position as solicitor for the Pennsylvania telephone company.

Fred Shope had the misfortune of smashing two of his fingers while loading ties at Curtin.

—Mr. Clay Rider, wife, and family, Mr. William Rider, wife, and family avoided the rush on the train going to the park and drove down on Tuesday.

—The committee of the Centre District of the Evangelical church met at Coburn on Tuesday and selected a home at Millheim for their Presiding Elder. This is sort of a black horse affair as Millheim was not in the race, but we suppose they presented better offers than any place else.

—Hastings Gates resigned his position at Sechler's store and has accepted one at the Adams Express office. Hasting is a splendid young fellow and can do the work he is at now just as well, if not better than any one else they can get. He is sober, industrious and a willing worker We hope he meets with success.

—On Saturday an ice cream and cake supper was held in the Salvation Army Hall above the Centre County Bank. Over 180 people had gathered there and all say that it was one of the most delightful and social events that ever took place in that hall. Quite a nice sum of money, clear of expenses was raised. Captain Robert Henderson and Lieutenant Harry Ressler are much incouraged with the way in which the work is progressing in this place, and are looking forth for greater victories and success.

Happy Wedding at Runville.

On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock Miss Lula Lucas of Runville became the wife of Floyd Carl Davis of Bellefonte.

The wedding ceremony was performed at the home of the brides parents Mr. and Mrs. John Lucas. Only the immediate friends of the happy young couple were present.

Rev. John Zeigler of Wingate was the parson who said the words that made these young folks man and wife. Miss Iva Rishel of Bellefonte was the bridesmaid while Guy Stover of Bellefonte acted as best man. A sumptuous wedding dinner was served after the ceremony. Mr. Davis is employed at Pitcairn and holds a responsible position there with the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. We feel sure he will make a good, kind husband as his wife is a good housekeeper aad knows exactly how to make the home pleasant and attractive for her better half.

They will leave Thursday for Pitcairn where the groom has a home already for his bride. We extend to them our heartest congratulations and best wishes.

Passed into the Great Beyond.

On Monday morning at 11 o'clock Harry H. Young passed into the unknown world. He had only been real sick about ten days when his spirit life passed away. The cause of his death was due to a fall he had several years ago, he was a young married man of splendid qualities and was highly respected by all who knew him.

Harry H. Young was born in Curtin twp., Centre county, April 29, 1876 died Aug. 19, 1907, aged 31 yrs. 3 mo. and 21 days. He is survived by his wife and four children Lewis, Arena, Earlwood and Frederick. His aged mother and the following brothers and sisters also survive to mourn his death. John H. Cartwright, Mitchell A., Harvey W., Elijah, Elmer S., William C. and Eddie, Mrs. Ida C. Bitner and Sarah A. Cartwright.

The funeral occurred Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services held in the Union Chapel at Valley View conducted by Rev. W. H. Spangler of the United Brethren church.

Married.

At the M. E. Parsonage at Pleasant Gap on Thursday evening Aug. 15th, Bernard Stover of Bellefonte and Lula B. Johnson of Hublersburg were united in marriage by Rev. J. B. Durkee. Miss Ethel Smith of Altoona acted as bridesmaid and Everet Johnson of Hublersburg brother of the bride was best man.

GROOMING COUNTS

But it cannot make a Fair Skin or a Glossy Coat.

Women with good complexions cannot be homely. Creams, lotions, washes and powders cannot make a fair skin. Every horseman knows that the satin coat of his thoroughbred comes from the animal's "all-right" condition. Let the horse get "off his feed" and his coat turns dull. Currying, brushing and rubbing will give him a clean coat, but cannot produce the coveted smoothness and gloss of the horse's skin, which is his complexion. The ladies will see the point.

Lane's Family Medicine

Is the best preparation for ladies who desire a gentle laxative medicine that will give the body perfect cleanliness internally and the wholesomeness that produces such skins as painters love to copy.

ON TRAIL OF BURNS

The Man Who Duped Nittany Valley Housewives

The fellow who travels under the name of Burns and visited many households in the vicinity of Salona, in Nittanyvalley and also in the North Bend neighborhood, selling $10.50 worth of soap besides promising a premium of many yards of axminster carpet, china ware and lamps, providing the money was paid to him in advance, the very thing many unsuspecting ones did and then failed to make good the purchases, has been found engaged in the same nefarious business in Warren county. The district attorney of that county informed District Attorney Henry Hipple of this county that his capture was possible, when Mr. Hipple instructed him to arrest him and forewarn a warrant to him on the information of one of the parties who has duped in this county. It is to be hoped that the warrant may reach the officers in Warren county before the culprit gets outside of their bailiwick and that he will be brought back here to face the people whose confidence he abused and made to answer for his roguery. Many of our people will be anxious to hear of the outcome of the effort on the part of our district attorney.

Mason's Camp Notes.

The approaching weeks end at Mason's Camp promises to be lively, especially the chicken and waffle Sunday dinner at 6 p. m., if the weather is good. The water was fine all week except Friday afternoon it was cold. The motor boat has been behaving very nicely all week, its tantrums being fewer. The largest party has been down all week that has ever remained at the camp, every available sleeping places being filled two nights. My but Thursday night was cold, thermometer near down to freezing point. "Dewey" was very lively Thursday night seemed to have a spasm, if you don't believe it ask Blair, he was so particular about his cot he made it up several time before it satisfied Blair. We were all sorry to see Grimm leave us on Wednesday he was the father of the camp and he a good one. Sechler likes paper bed clothes, he says they are warmer but the rustling turning over wake the party up so they are not popular. The camp breaks up Monday. Harry Curtin has it for his family next week.

Bill Doak Hurt.

Bill Doak one of Bellefonte's unfortunates had the misfortune of being pretty badly hurt Friday morning. As every one knows he is deaf and blind, and walks around over the streets with the use of a cane, and when going over a crossing he always makes a noise of some kind so that any one driving along can hear him.

Friday morning he was passing over the crossing at Dr. Hayes residence on Spring street and Ira From was driving out the alley with a load of rubbish, he didn't hear nor see Doak, and the horse struck him and knocked him down. The poor fellow was picked up and taken into the Doctor,s office. Upon examination no bones were broken but he was badly bruised and cut. He was taken home in Christ Beezer's carriage.

Fire at Lingles Foundry.

On Saturday evening a casting weighing 2500 pounds exploded at the J. Howard Lingle foundry and set fire to the roof of the building. The splendid water supply they have installed for emergencies of this kind was put into action and in a little time the flames were extinguished. It was very fortunate that the men were not standing near the casting when it exploded as some of them would have been badly burned.

Automobile Party in Bellefonte.

On Sunday a gay crowd of bucks from Tyrone under car of Billy Johnson former clerk at the Garman House arrived in Bellefonte in a mammoth touring car. The crowd was composed of C. E. Keefer E. J. Cupp, John Delozier, J. H. Chamberlain, J. J. Hewett, J. M. Hewett, Walter Galbraith and Billy Johnson. The boys took dinner at Garman House, visited the Fish Hatchery and then went home.

Camping at Hecla Park.

A happy crowd of young folks are camping at Hecla Park and from what we understand they expect to be there ten days. The crowd is known as the "Diamonds" and is composed of the following young ladies and gentlemen. Misses Edna Hamilton, Marion Dukeman, Blanche and Mabie Gengher, Messrs. Charley Taylor, Elliott Meese, William Dugan and Edward Gengher. They are being carefully taken care o by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Jennings.

Real Estate Transfers.

The following real estate transfers were recorded during the past week by Recorder John C. Rowe.

Jas. Croder et ux to G. S. Fronk, June 27 07, ½ of 31a 68p in Gregg twp; consideration $25

Samuel Frantz et ux to Robert R. McMonigal, June 26 07, 98a 89p in Taylor twp; consideration $400

ENTERED INTO REST.

Mrs. Joseph Apt Passes Into the Great Beyond.

What rejoicing in his presence
When are banished grief and pain
When the crooked ways are straightened
And the dark things shall be plain.

On Wednesday evening about 10.30 the peaceful angel of death entered the Apt home a little south of Bellefonte and called away the spirit life of the mother.

Mrs. Apt has only been ill about eight days but in that time she suffered wonderfully. A couple of years ago she fell on the ice and injured herself and for quite awhile was confined to her bed and it is thought the cause of her death was the ultimate result of this fall.

She was an earnest christian lady and when health permitted she was always seen at the house of worship. She was a kind, good neighbor, no matter who was ill or in trouble in the neighborhood if she could be of any help she was always there to assist. In her home she will be wonderfully missed by her husband and children. She was a great home lady and loved to make every thing homelike and comfortable for the ones she loved.

Mrs. Apt was a lady about 60 years of age. She leaves to mourn her death a husband and the following children, Mrs. William Breon, Lewistown, Pa.; Mrs. William Allen, Bellefonte, Mr. John Wian, Pitcairn, and a number of stepchildren.

Mrs. Apt has been a member of the Methodist Episcopal church since girlhood.

Anent the County Fair.

Pennsylvania county fairs were at one time the occasion for the assembling of the people from and country at some central point, not only to view the exhibits of farm products and implements, but the renewal of old acquaintanceships and the making of new one. Those old time fairs were the genuine article. Of late years, however, there has been a marked tendency to infuse different methods in the conduct of these gatherings until the county fair has become somewhat of a misnomer.

Some years ago the county fairs in many sections of the state fell into the cluthes of fakers and gamblers. There was no agricultural exhibition worth looking at; there were some alleged horse races and a great deal of gambling and other schemes for accumulating money in violation of law. Some of these gambling contests are still in existence in the state. Some of them have died at the hands of an outraged people. Some exhibits were indecent.

The Daily News trusts that the fakers with their gambling devices, will be driven not only from the Centre county fair, but from every county in the state. It hopes the farmers and all others who are interested in the integrity and purity of the county fair will be strong enough to overthrow all enterprises which seek to steal the money of those who attend the fair, and that in course of time the fair that will be held will be the old fashioned article—the kind our grandsires organized and supported.

Monday's Fire.

On Monday afternoon the fire alarm sounded one long toot. The fire was at the Fair Grounds in the old house that stood along the Central Railroad of Pennsylvania and by the time the Undine firemen got there and had the engine working the flames had distroyed nearly the entire house. But the boys saved part of the building and the high fence close by. The house was occupied by a Hungarian family and most all the furniture they had was destroyed.

Opening of Schools.

Supt. John D. Meyer will be at his office in the stone school building on Friday morning of this week to meet any who wish to enter the High School or the grades of the public schools. The schools will open this year on September 2nd.

THE RIGHT MEDICINE FOR PELVIC TROUBLES FOUND IN PE-RU-NA.

MRS. CAROLINE KRAMER, Fort Collins, Col., writes:

"The majority of women who are suffering from disordered periods and other pelvic troubles, have such strong faith in doctors that they allow them to experiment on them for kidney, liver or stomach troubles until they become completely discouraged and their money is gone.

"This was my unfortunate experience for nearly two years when my attention was called to Peruna.

"I hardly dared believe that at last I had found the right medicine, but as I kept on using it and was finally cured, I could only thank God and take courage.

"I have had most satisfying results from the use of your medicine and have advised dozens of women who were suffering with woman's ills to use Peruna and let the doctors alone.

"Those who followed my advice are better today and many are fully restored to health."

Mrs. Wilda Mooers, R. F. D., No. 1, Lents, Ore., writes:

"For the past four years I was a wretched woman, suffering with severe backaches and other pains, leaving me so weak and weary that it was only with difficulty that I was able to attend to my household duties.

"I used different remedies, but found no relief until I had tried Peruna.

"Within two weeks there was a change for the better and in less than three months I was a well and happy woman.

"All the praise is due to Peruna."

Death of Mr. Gilliland.

Mr. Wm. P. Humes has received a letter from Mr. Abram R. Wingate of Washington in which he announces the death of Mr. John R Gilliland who has been holding an important Clerkship in one of the Government Offices for many years, and who was a orotherin law of Mr. Wingate. As Mr Gilliland belonged to an old and prominent Centre County family, being the son of the late Major James Gilliland, at the request of the family, through Mr. Wingate, it was thought proper a notice of his death should be given in the Bellefonte papers where the family have been so well known for so many years. Mr. Wingate, who is General Superintendent of one of the most fashionable Hotel's in the City of Washington. The "New Willard" is a son of the late Dr. Wingate, who resided in Bellefonte for many years, and who was one of our most prominent dentists, and having a large practice.

Laid to Rest.

On Thursday afternoon the Methodist Episcopal church was filled with friends of the late Miss Elsie Hendersbot, who had gathered to pay a last tribute of respect to the young lady.

The services were in charge of Rev. J. B. Durkee of Pleasant Gap who spoke beautifully of the young life that had just passed beyond. The choir sang 'One Sweetly Solemn Thought," and "Silently the Shades of night are Falling.

The body rested in a beautiful silver gray couch casket. The honorary pallbearers were the following young ladies: Misses Julia McClellen, Sarah Kelly, Marjorie Richard, Pearl Derstine, Vergie Robb and Mary Rosenhoover. The casket bearers were the following young men, Messrs. Fred Hull, Ralph Mosebarger, Malcolm Waite, Harry Keeler, Joe McGowan and John Kane. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

GIVING OF SMALL DINNERS.

The Secret of Success Where Finances Are Somewhat Limited.

Because one may not spend many dollars on the giving of dinners, that is no reason why one may not have them. It needs only a prettily arranged table, a congenial and carefully selected group of six or eight guests and a hostess in a pretty pale frock to achieve an atmosphere that cannot be outdone, except in the matter of money spent, by the hostess who has a menage of sorts with a butler to serve and three or four maids to help take off one's wraps.

The first principle for the hostess with one maid who aspires to a dinner is to be tremendously careful not to attempt the impossible. Just the fact of giving the dinner is bound to mean a lot of work for her, but that will be part of her joy in the occasion. The menu ought to be simple and of things that she knows her cook can achieve, and the salad, the dessert and all the arrangements must be done by herself if they are to be at all elaborate.

An oyster or a fruit cocktail, to begin with, is an inexpensive dish and one that will give a simple meal a "party-like" air that will start it right. A pineapple cocktail, for instance, may be made from canned fruit. The fruit is shredded quite fine; then to it are added three sherry glasses of curacoa and the juice of three lemons. Use enough sugar to sweeten and a gill of good brandy and a few cherries or white grapes. Place at each plate a tall glass of this on a small doily.

There need be no worry over the clear soup, for every cook can make that, only be sure it is hot. Then the fish may be in ramekins or large artificial shells and of halibut with bits of lobster, and this, too, loses its goodness if not hot. With the roast there need be but one vegetable, and that a hot macaroni dish or chestnuts creamed or tiny carrots in a cream sauce; always potatoes in some form, those beaten up and seasoned and put back into their half shells with a top dressing of whipped egg being nice.

The salad, the next course, should be, above all, very cold and the plates equally so. Haven't you dined in houses where the plates were sadly limited and the cook had hastily washed some that had been used before and that were still hot? That is one of the small tragedies that the hostess of small allowance must guard against thrusting upon the notice of her guests.

A skinned tomato stuffed with a delicious concoction of chopped up nuts and apple, with a delicious dab of mayonnaise dressing flowing over it, with a crisp lettuce leaf beneath, will make a splash of color that looks most refreshing after the hot dishes. One serves tiny toasted and cheesed biscuits with this, with cream, Camembert or Brie cheese.

And then the dessert may be as elaborate as one dares attempt. About the simplest and yet most elaborate looking sweet there is is made by filling tall stemmed glasses with a vanilla ice into which you have chopped walnuts and wee bits of pineapple or cherry and on which is poured a hot chocolate sauce.

A Chair Hospital.

Quite the newest thing in the way of an occupation for women is putting cane seats in chairs.

A Boston woman has chosen this unique way of earning money and is making a decided success of it. She has secured a clientele among well known families, and every patron she serves brings several others, so that her "chair hospital," as she calls her workshop, is seldom without a large number of patients. She averages 60 or 70 cents on each chair and can cane five or six a day.

BEAUTY HINTS.

Lemon juice has a place on the toilet table of the careful girl. It removes stains from the hands and whitens the skin. Marks on the neck made by wearing a high collar may be removed by lemon juice.

Children in Italy are not allowed to rub their eyes. When an infant bursts into tears no effort is made to repress the emotion, but the youngster is allowed to have its cry out. It is asserted that this beautifies the eyes and makes them clear, while rubbing the eyes injures them in many ways.

In many cases a wonderful improvement in the complexion may be obtained by merely washing the face several times a day with the following lotion, leaving it on until it dries: Take half an ounce of glycerin and mix with it half a pint of orange flower water. To this add a tablespoonful of powdered borax.

Women who have oily skins too quickly resign themselves to their fate. The following solution will give a clear, dry skin in three months if used regularly: Pulverized borax one ounce, pure glycerin two ounces, camphor water, not spirits of camphor, two quarts. The skin should be bathed with this lotion two or three times a day.

How to Roll an Umbrella.

"Why is it," asked an inquisitive customer in an umbrella shop, "that one can never roll up an umbrella as compactly and neatly as it is rolled when he buys it?"

"You can if you only know how," said the shopkeeper, "but if everybody knew how it would mean less business for us. The umbrella would last longer, and there would be much less work for the repairers. Perhaps I ought not to tell you how, but it's so simple you should know. If you have noticed, nearly everybody who rolls up an umbrella takes hold of it by the handle and keeps twisting the stick with one hand, while he folds and rolls with the other.

"Now, that's just where the mistake comes in. Instead of twisting with the handle he should take hold of it just above the points of the cover ribs. These points naturally lie evenly round the stick. Keep hold of these, pressing them tightly against the stick, and then roll up the cover. Holding the ribs prevents them from getting twisted out of place or bending out of shape. Then the silk will fold evenly and roll smoothly and tightly."

To Iron Lace.

Lace is never improved by ironing while it is wet, but if it is wanted quickly or the time for working is limited it should be placed right side down on a pad of flannel and covered with a piece of muslin to keep the iron from touching the lace. This will prevent the lace from having a shiny appearance and will also keep it from sticking to the iron, which very often causes it to tear.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

Discarded dimity skirts make very attractive bureau scarfs. They may be bleached white, if necessary, and then conventional designs worked on them with floss or cut out cretonne designs appliqued on.

When ants are troublesome sprinkle sugar through a small piece of sponge and leave these about the pantry shelves. In a short time the ants will be holding a high carnival. Plunge the sponges in boiling water and set again.

A good remedy for keeping moths out of furs and woolen pieces is to wrap the fur tightly in a piece of newspaper that has been soaked in turpentine. Place in an old pillowcase or bag. There is absolutely no danger that the moths will disturb any piece so treated.

The Tale of a Feather Duster.

By F. P. SUMMERWELL.

Copyrighted, 1907, by M. M. Cunningham.

His first election night in New York found him drifting and lonely, in the midst of the howling mob that surged around Herald square.

The horns, the tickling dusters, the showers of confetti, the merry intermingling of class and mass, were all too new to be quite pleasing experiences. He felt interested enough, however, to move with the throng and to take good naturedly the many familiarities of the people near him.

At Thirty-seventh street and Broadway he saw a slim young girl trying to escape the attentions of two overzealous duster holders. He pushed his way to her side and the boys fled, leaving him alone with the lady, no longer in distress.

She was young and of an alluring, limpid prettiness that made him feel big and awakward and anxious about the set of his coat. So absorbed was he in her general charm that her suddenly thrusting of a duster under his nose was a distinct shock. He had just sense enough to snatch it and ask, "Who are you?" when she ran away. Over her shoulder she called, "I'll tell you when you give me back my duster." Then she was gone.

He moved with the capering merrymakers up to Longacre square, where he learned of the defeat of his candidate for governor, then went home. The duster he carried with him and, handling it tenderly, hoped it might prove a means to dispel the crushing loneliness which he had felt ever since he had left his native town. He often wondered what the letters M. M. on the handle stood for.

His days went about as usual. He paid his lost election bet to the other young lawyer at the office. The winner's not treating seemed strange. At home they always did—but in New York everything was so different. He began to get on at the office, and once Judge Metcalf, his chief, mentioned taking him home to dine, but the matter never went any further.

The night of the presidential election found him once more mingling in the swarming pandemonium that raged around Herald square. He had the duster inside his coat and was no longer either lonely or listless, for he was hunting for M. M. to give her back the duster.

He wandered up and down, reading the conflicting bulletins, but always looking for a slender fairy of a girl who had sat like a queen in his heart for two years. The great searchlight at the Times building swung due north to indicate a Republican landslide, while the Journal's bulletin announced an overwhelming victory for the Democrats. Farther downtown the Herald proclaimed a small but safe majority for the Republicans, while according to a white sheet at Thirty-first street the same thing had befallen the other party.

He wrenched a yard long horn from an impertinent Italian boy, was tickled by a lady in an ermine coat and received a shower of confetti from a German housewife—all in the space of about ten minutes. He no longer looked askance at the mixed merrymakers. It was New York, and it all "went."

In front of the New Grand his attention was attracted by a gorgeous motor car. On the front seat sat his lady of the feather duster. There could be no doubt. It was she.

He felt cold and scared, but he pulled himself together and, stepping to her side, gave her the duster, handle first, and said, "Now, will you tell me who you are?"

She opened her eyes very wide, recognized him and the duster and started to speak when a smashing blow from the man beside her sent him spinning to fall with his head against an iron grating. His next sensation was of flying through space. Then a thousand bells rang, lights danced, voices buzzed, and he opened his eyes on a strange room. It was handsomer than his own, and beside him sat a nurse looking out of the window.

There was a calendar on the table, giving the date as Nov. 16. It must be a mistake, he thought—this was Nov. 7, election night, and yet there was the calendar. He put out his hand to draw it to him when the nurse turned, and he recognized the girl in the automobile. His head ached and his hands shook, but he was good grit, and when he met her bright gaze he said, "You never did tell me who you are." She laughed squarely at him, saying:

"My brother seemed to think his answer quite sufficient. He knocked you over before I had a chance to say anything. You ought to know who I am anyway. My picture has been on father's desk ever since the day after I met you in Thirty-seventh street, and the boys told me who you were. It occurred to me then that he ought to have one, but you never saw it. I am Marjory Metcalf, your chief's only daughter.

"Tom didn't know you when you brought me my duster, and before I could speak he knocked you down. We brought you home and have had a terrible time saving your life. The nurse is asleep, and I stole into her uniform. I guess I'll have to go now or she might not like it."

He caught her dimpled hand and persuaded her that the nurse really needed rest, which she must perforce take so long as she was without any uniform.

They had a lovely afternoon, giggling over the imprisoned nurse, eating bonbons, forgetting his medicine and being as happy as one can be in the springtime of life.

At 5 Mrs. Metcalf came in and told them that the nurse had departed in high dudgeon. They did not get any one in her place, Marjory and Tom and Mrs. Metcalf taking care of him themselves.

The night before he was to leave Marjory came up with the maid who brought his dinner. She was so perfectly lovely in a clinging white dress, open at the neck, that he had no eyes for anything except her dainty beauty. She finally decided that if he would not eat she would feed him, and they made a great frolic of the meal.

After she had made him take the last morsel, she decided to make him presentable. So she washed his face, then she combed his hair, and then he—but you would have done it yourself—she was so sweet. Of course she cried—they always do—and he had to kiss her again to comfort her. Then she grew a little saucy and tipped up her cleft chin and looked so irresistible he simply had to—just once more.

Mrs. Metcalf came in and found her daughter kneeling by Phil Pemberton's chair with her head on his shoulder. Her mother was so overcome that she forgot her grammar and exclaimed, "Why, Marjory, you've been being kissed."

"Mother," said Marjory, "how can you speak of such things before a strange man?"

"He is acting like a stranger, isn't he?" sniffed the lady of the house. "Are you engaged?"

"You'll have to ask him," said Marjory. "I don't really know."

"Why, yes, Mrs. Metcalf," answered Phil, "we are—I am sorry Marjory never told you."

"Why, Phil," exclaimed his sweetheart, "you know we have never mentioned it."

"Mother," she cried, "don't you think father must be lonely downstairs alone? I should think you'd hate to leave him."

Mrs. Metcalf went and told her husband, who said he was delighted—that he would rather have her marry a poor man who promised well than a rich one who did not. Phil stayed a week longer, then begged Marjory to marry and go with him. He was six feet three, but he persuaded this little maid that he could not live without her—that loneliness would be his undoing. So they were married, not downstairs, as they ought to have been, but up in the cozy room where he had first seen her in the nurse's clothes.

Mr. Metcalf gave her away and Tom was best man, while Mrs. Metcalf stood very near and smiled through misty eyes. The little bride wore the white dress with the open neck and looked like a morning glory. In her hair she wore no orange flowers, not even a "sunburst, the gift of the groom"—but she did wear a moth eaten, much used feather duster.

SARATOGA CHIPS.

Dainty Invented by Lately Deceased Colored Boniface.

If one owns a potato slicer, which is not an expensive utensil, Saratoga chips are easily prepared. They are always an acceptable accompaniment to fried fish, but perhaps are never more happily in evidence than when served as one of the accessories of a picnic luncheon. Wash and pare medium sized potatoes. Slice thin, using a vegetable slicer made for the purpose, into a bowl of cold water and let stand one and one-half hours, changing the water twice.

Drain, plunge into a kettle of boiling water and let boil one minute. Drain again, cover with cold water and let stand five minutes. Take from the water and dry between towels. Fry in deep fat until delicately browned, keeping in motion with a skimmer throughout the cooking. Remove with a skimmer to a pan lined with brown paper (which will absorb the superfluous fat) and sprinkle with salt. Always drain fried potatoes on brown paper, for fried food if properly cooked and properly drained seldom absorbs enough fat to be indigestible to adults.

When Sir Edwin Landseer, the world famous painter of animals, visited the royal court at Lisbon, the old king of Portugal greeted him with the salutation: "Ah, Sir Edwin, I am glad to see you. I am so fond of beasts!"

But for bungled flattery this does not begin to compare with the remark of an unlucky admirer of the great French actress, Mme. St. Denis. Her performance of Zara had just been greeted with enthusiastic applause, and as she stepped from the stage she said, "To act that well a woman should be young and handsome." "Ah, no madame!" exclaimed the unfortunate man in his anxiety to pay the highest compliment possible. "You are convincing proof to the contrary!"

Celia's Duckling.

When Celia's hen hatched out her brood
One of her chickies seemed no good—
Treated his ma with disrespect,
Marked disobedience and neglect.
In spite of [illegible]rd and look
He plunged [illegible] the brook.
His mother kicked up and down,
Lamenting that her child would drown.
With every feather in a flutter
She called, with many a clack and clutter,
With many an anxious, troubled cluck—
She didn't know he was a duck!
And we, it chanced, were there to see
This much afflicted family.
We did not worry, for we knew
A duckling knows a thing or two.
We wanted to explain—but, then,
How can one 'xplain things to a hen?

Hand Badly Burned.

J. S. Waite the agricultural implement dealer, met with a painful accident Monday and but for the watchfulness of his son, Herbert, the building would probably have been burned.

A number of cans of white enamel, which is used for re-enameling bath tubs, etc., was in a closet in the paint shop among the various kinds of oils, paints and turpentine and it became ignited by spontaneous combustion. Herbert Waite discovered the fire almost instantly and seizing the cans of enamel threw them into the alley. Some of the stuff, which contains phospho ous, and which the heat had drawn from it, lay on the shelf in the paint closet. Mr. Waite was feeling about to ascertain if there was a further fire when his right hand was frightfully burned by the heated phosphorous. In attempting to wipe the stuff from his hand his overalls were also set on fire, but this was extinguished by his son.

The gentleman is suffering great pain today from the severe burns, but is thankful that it was no worse. Lock Haven Express.

The Coleville Band Concert.

The Coleville band gave their second concert last night in front of the Bush House. The music was delightful and was enjoyed by a large crowd. The boys managed to raise $11.00 and it is to be hoped that some one will come up with the other dollar so that these concerts can be continued the rest of the summer.

Dr. Wilcox to Retire.

Mrs. George M. Tibbens.

Agnes Adam, wife of George M. Tibbens, died at her home near Little Robe, Okla., Monday evening, August 12, 1907, in her 56th year. She was a daughter of the late Mrs. Margaret Glenn and was born in Bellefonte December 22, 1851 and was educated in the public schools having been a pupil under the late Daniel H. Hastings. She was married Dec. 17, 1868, to George M. Tibbens by the Rev. Alfred Yoemans pastor of the Bellefonte Presbyterian church. To this union were born seven children, Harry Ulmer Tibbens, now of Wheeling, W. Va.; John Glenn, who died while attending the Bellefonte High School Nov, 4 1886; Margaret Glenn Farber, near Little Robe, Okla.; Mary Agnes, who died in Patton, Pa., Sept. 20 1898, George Hugh, of Little Robe, Okla; William Edward, of Havelock, Neb. and David Winfield Tibbens of Idaho. Besides her husband and the children surviving other surviving relations of Mrs. Tibbens are her aunts, Mrs. Jane G. Brown, Bellefonte and Mrs. J. M. Brower, Buffalo Run.

The funeral took place Sunday afternoon with services at the home of Mrs. Brown on Howard street conducted by the Rev. Hal Orbison.

All the surviving children were in attendence at the last sad rites except the youngest, Winfield, who could not be reached in Idaho, owing to the strike of telegraph operators. Interment was made in the Glenn lot in the Union cemetery.

The Only Successful Woman Publisher In the World.

Miss Carro Clark holds a unique position. She can claim the distinction of being the only successful woman publisher in the world. She is the founder and head of the C. M. Clark Publishing company of Boston. When asked about her success she said: "Five years ago it became necessary for me to do something for a living. I was suddenly thrown on my own resources. I had a little money of my own and decided to go in for book publishing. Several persons pointed out that the calling was overcrowded, a large capital was needed, while the business was such an intricate one that it required a man's head to succeed.

"I determined, however, to put the matter to a test. I opened a small office in Boston, my native town, and then went round to several friends and persons whom I knew could write me something worth publishing. I then made all necessary arrangements for printing and distributing. In less than five months I had launched on the market two novels, eighteen story books for children, a medical book for the home, as well as a popular work on dressmaking.

"They all went well, and I thought my position was assured. This belief was quickly shattered. Six other books turned out complete failures. I then realized I should have to hustle if I meant to continue in the business. I sought out a number of authors and was fortunate in securing several works that did well."

MISS CARRO CLARK.

Miss Clark admitted that for the first three years—she has now been a publisher for five—she worked very hard from morning to night.

She declares that much of her success is due to the periodical journeys she makes to the various cities.

The moment she has some new books ready she maps out a tour, and commercial travelers have frequently marveled at the amount of ground she covers and the business she transacts on these journeys.

Arriving at a town, she spends two or three hours visiting her agents and arranging sales.

The moment her work is finished a train is taken to the next stopping place, and so on until the programme is completed.

A Novel Blotter.

A pretty combination blotter is made as follows: Tie three ordinary, rather large blotters together by piercing through one corner and running in a bow of baby ribbon. Then on the outside paste one of the small unmounted penny calendars and a postal view.

At first blush there seems nothing especially novel or attractive about this combination, but its variations are manifold. It is pretty in school or college colors, both blotters and ribbon partaking of the shades. In this case the postal may represent one of the college buildings. At Christmas it is charming all in red and green and at Easter in green and white.

If one buys the large blotters and cuts them oneself, the cost for twenty blotters averages 7 cents apiece. They are extremely easy to make and, while serving the place of a printed card, are much more personal in their appeal.

If one wishes one may draw or paint around the edge of the blotter a simple decorative border and on the postal write the name of the giver and the date.

An odd use to which they may be put is to send them as invitations, writing name, date, time and address on the postal. For $2 one may make, stamp and wrap twenty-five of these, an average cost of 8 cents apiece for all expenditures—surely little enough!

Wedding Gowns No Longer Saved.

Among the old fashioned ideas that are disappearing in this intensely practical age is the desire to preserve the wedding gown for future generations.

For one thing, there is a superstition that there can be no luck about a house while the wedding gown is in it, and, besides, there is not much room in the modern house for storing away old gowns, and there is not much room in the woman of today has too many duties, active and pressing, to enable her to spend many hours pondering over her wedding gown and laughing or crying over the vanished ideals of the wedding day. The result of all this is that many brides have their bridal gowns made with two objects in view—their proper appearance on their wedding day and their future usefulness.

After the bride has her photograph taken in the gown it is sent back to the dressmakers to be remodeled. The train must come off, of course, and from the material of this an evening bodice may be made. The high necked waist that was made for the wedding day may be used with the short skirt on the bride's at home day, while the low necked bodice will be ready for dinners and dances.

The bride should keep a piece of the gown itself for the binding of her wedding book, which holds the records of the engagement and wedding, the list of guests and presents, a flower from her bouquet, the bridegroom's boutonniere and all the other memorable things connected with the ceremony.

A Novel Candle Shade.

So many persons find the light from a candle or lamp trying on the eyes that they always insist on shades of some sort.

A pretty and novel affair for a candle may be made of strong wire bent into a rectangular shape, six inches wide at the bottom, with the inner side twelve inches tall and the outer seven and one-half. This will give a decided slope to each top.

Make two of these frames and cover them neatly with silk muslin or a very thin liberty silk.

This cover may then be painted or it can be studded in conventional designs in sequins. Tie the backs together with bows of narrow ribbon for hinges, and around the top and two shorter sides sew a box plaiting of narrow lace.

The candle is, of course, placed between the two leaves when they are opened wide. Extreme care must be taken to observe this precaution, as a fire might easily result from such inflammable materials in close proximity to flame.

A Plea For Enlisting.

No man who will look carefully into the work of the army or of the navy can fail to realize that a career in either branch of our military service is one to which any man may give himself with the fullest devotion and with the highest ideals. Americans, as a rule, know little about the actual work of either of these services, and few realize that when a man enters the service of the army or of the navy, whether as officer or enlisted man, he enters a great school, a school in which is taught not only the discipline of self restraint, of cleanliness, of devotion to duty, but in which are taught also the elements of an education. An enlisted man who enters a regiment of the army, barely able to read and write, comes out, if he be a man of ambition and industry, at the end of three years in possession of the fundamentals of an English education. His officer stands to him not only in the relation of military director, but in the relation also of a teacher and a friend. There is no career open to an American boy, unless it be that of a teacher, which offers a larger opportunity than that of the army or navy officer to minister to the service of men.—President H. S. Pritchett in Atlantic.

Toads' Hatching Places.

Every tiny toad lays a stupendous number of eggs. A scientist received 11,545 eggs from one toad, a necessary fertility, since the chances of an egg developing into a toad are less than one in a thousand. Within two weeks after the eggs are laid the young tadpoles begin to appear and feed first on their gelatinous envelope. Next the slimy deposits common to ponds and swamps are attacked. Steadily grow the young wrigglers until their bodies enlarge to the size of thumb nails by the end of June. The long tail now is absorbed and the legs develop. They begin to hop on the bank and disperse, never to return save in the breeding season. It is at the spring of the year that the toads awake from their winter sleep below the rocks and scrub. They often have been literally frozen stiff, but they return to life as healthy as ever and on the first balmy night migrate toward the nearest breeding pond. Usually this is the old homestead where they were born, for the toad is a domestic animal and will travel a mile or more for the sake of returning to the place of its hatching. —Chicago Tribune.

As His Mother Taught Him.

A southern judge tells of the disqualification of a juryman who came before him. The case was a capital one, and the lanky backwoodsman declared determined opposition to capital punishment. Looking at him sternly, and in tones somewhat suggestive of wrath, the judge asked the fellow if he did not think there were conditions so extraordinary as to warrant the hanging of the offender. He said he did not believe anything could make him assent to such a verdict.

"But will your honor let me explain?" said the disqualified citizen. "I'd like to give the court my reasons."

"I don't wish to hear any explanation from you. Go and sit down."

"Excuse me, judge, but you must hear my reason."

"Well, then, give it, and go along with you."

"The reason I am opposed to capital punishment, your honor, is that my old mammy taught me it were a sin to kill anything that wasn't fitten to eat."

Took It Literally.

It is told of the late Chauncey Shafer, who bears the same relation to New York's "anecdotage" that Sydney Smith does to London's, that he employed in his law office a stunted youth of very tractable temperament.

One day Mr. Shafer returned from lunch in a lively mood and, by token of the madeira he had consumed, summoned Billy into his private office.

"Boy," he said carelessly, "go over to the special term and see what in —— they're doing up there."

The late Judge Brady was presiding over the trial of an action involving many interesting questions of substantive law; hence the courtroom was empty save for the litigants, their counsel and the necessary witnesses. Judge Brady's kindliness toward women and children was proverbial, and when Billy stood against the railing of the inclosure, his face barely reaching the balustrade, the judge noticed him immediately. He interrupted the arguments of counsel and turned to Billy.

"Well, my lad," he said in suave, judicial accents, "what can I do for you?"

"I'm from Mr. Shafer's office," Billy replied, "and he wants to know what in —— you're up to over here."—Success Magazine.

From Out the Grave.

In the little village of Tewin, Hertfordshire, England, there are five large trees growing out of a single grave, and thereby hangs a curious story. On the slab that marks the grave was carved the inscription:

"Here lyeth inter'd the body of the Right Honorable Lady Anne Grimestone, wife of Sir Samuel Grimestone, Bart., of Gohambury, in Hertfordshire, daughter of the late Right Honorable the Earl of Thanet, who departed this life Nov. 22, 1713, in the sixtieth year of her age."

The village story says that Lady Grimestone, persisting in a lifelong denial of the existence of a God, on her deathbed declared in answer to the exhortations of her friends that if in the other world she found that there was indeed a God five trees would grow out of her grave. The woman died and was buried. Shortly after the interment the five little shoots began to appear, growing constantly until they split the masonry and wrecked the railing about the tomb.—New York Tribune.

Animal Peculiarities.

A herd of wild Asian buffaloes will charge any foe, even a tiger, to save the life of one of their number that has been wounded. Elephants, baboons and other animals will do the same thing in a wild state.

On the other hand, monkeys have been known to fall upon one of their number that is ill and drown him, possibly as an act of mercy. Similarly wolves destroy one of the pack that becomes helpless.

If an otter is trapped, his brother otters will run around him all night, showing the utmost concern.

A writer in the London Spectator states that he has seen sparrows in groups discussing and lamenting when one of their number had fallen into a trap. Next day, when a robin was caught, the sparrows paid no attention. He adds that he had seen a big pig try to help a smaller one through a hole in the fence paling by pulling at its head.

Chinese Music.

The Chinese have eight instruments for making their ritual music—the bell, the flute, the drum, the sonorous stone, the fife, the plume, the shield and the ax. The last three make no music, but are used as decoration or emblem in the musical ceremonies and are enumerated as musical instruments. In every ceremony there are always two instruments of each kind, sometimes as many as four or six, never an odd number, in order to emphasize the duality of the Chinese people. For instance, one drum announces the beginning of the music, and its mate strikes the last note; one bell calls, and its counterpart answers.

Absentminded.

She was an exceedingly dainty little woman, who was taking a very great interest in the welfare of the convicts when she was being shown through the penitentiary the other day. Guard O'Brien was along when she happened to speak to one of the prisoners. "I am so sorry for you," she remarked in a tender tone of voice. "Of course you will be very thankful when the time comes for you to leave this dreadful place."

"No," retorted the man. "I'd a sight rather stop here where I am." The little woman almost collapsed.

"Isn't it strange?' she asked, turning to the guard. "I had no idea the prisoners were so contented. What was the poor fellow's offense?"

The guard concealed a covert grin. "He was just a little absentminded, that was all," followed the grin.

"Absentminded!" exclaimed his astonished interrogator.

"Yes, madam," politely replied O'Brien. "He persisted in forgetting he was married, and now when his time is up he has five wives awaiting him on the outside."

The woman could not deny that the convict had sufficient reasons to be contented with his present lot.—Columbus Dispatch.

Finance.

The agreeable visitor, says Judge, smiled upon the son of the house and said:

"Willie, if you recite that poem your mother taught you I'll give you a penny."

"Not likely! I can get a nickel anywhere for not reciting it," Willie replied.

He Was a Good Booster.

A minister was assigned to a small New England town not long ago and upon his arrival found his new field of effort almost all that could be wished, with one exception, this exception being old Bill Johnson. Old Bill was very much addicted to looking upon the wine when it was red, and the new minister at once announced his intention to bring him to see the error of his ways.

"Waal, of course, we know you mean right, parson," one of the elders said slowly, stroking his white beard, "but it would be a mighty bad thing for the town if old Bill was to quit drinkin'."

"Why, what do you mean, brother?" the puzzled minister asked.

"Waal, parson, it's like this," the elder explained. "There ain't a more convincin' talker nowhere than old Bill, an' every time he gets drunk and sobers up he gets somebody to sign the pledge with him, an' the other fellow pretty nearly always keeps it." —Harper's Weekly.

Procrastination and Ideals.

A man is much less apt to fall in love at twenty-seven than at twenty-two, and a woman is much less likely to be fallen in love with at twenty-five than at twenty. The damsel therefore who makes up her mind that the proper age for her to marry is twenty-five and the proper age for her husband twenty-eight and who acts up to this idea in her youthful days runs a great risk of achieving something quite different from her ideal.—London Truth.

The Land of Old Age.

"There is a certain exquisite flattery in our grandchildren's company. Betty loves everything I do. I seem to her witty, accomplished and gifted. More than this, she treats me as an equal," says "An Elderly Woman" in Harper's Bazar. "She is ignorant of draughts; she is not afraid all the time that I am going to tire myself out. In a word, she doesn't know that when she comes to see me she comes into the Land of Old Age. She doesn't know that it's because I am old that I have all the time there is, while her mother has to make time for her. For all Betty does for me I try to repay her by indulgences of all sorts—sometimes by forbidden indulgences. For these I get mildly scolded, but I keep right on. I have yet to hear of a boy who grew up a bad man because of the little indulgences his grandfather showered on him, nor of one who grew up a dyspeptic because of the surreptitious cookies his grandmother gave him. I am sure I am no worse a woman because my grandmother begged me off from some well merited punishments. So I spoil my grandchildren as much as I can, which is as much as I am let."

Bathing.

Cleanliness is next to godliness, and it is likewise essential to health. There is no apology for filth, and filth breeds disease. Germs do not like cleanliness, and they almost exert themselves to avoid it, so to keep clean is essential. Every child should receive either a sponge or a tub bath each day. The skin contains small glands, which should constantly carry off the poisons which collect within us. When the skin is dirty these glands do not act and these poisons are retained and give rise to ill health. Bathing keeps their ducts open, stimulates their action and thus aids in the process of elimination, thereby improving the nutrition. It is evident, therefore, that the idea that frequent bathing in the winter months is dangerous is wrong.—National Congress of Mothers' Magazine.

White Cake.

Take three cups of flour, two cups of sugar, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder. To this add one cup of fresh butter, one of sweet milk and the whites of five eggs. Mix well and bake in a loaf. Line the tin with buttered paper to prevent burning.

With White Enamel.

Did you know you could use white enamel to paint the oven of your range and it will look as pure and white as the porcelain of your refrigerator? It will not burn brown and does give a clean appearance to the baking apartment of the stove or range.

ONLY ONE

The Record in Bellefonte is a Unique One.

If the reader has a "bad back" or any kidney ill and is looking for relief and cure, better depend on the only remedy endorsed by people you know. Doan's Kidney Pills relieve quickly—cure permanently. Bellefonté citizens testify to this. Here is a case of it:

Mrs: Emma J. Davis of E. Logan St. Bellefonte, Pa. says; I have a great deal of confidence in Doan's Kidney Pills, and have already recommended them in a published testimonial in 1897. I told how I had been relieved of kidney complaint and backache which had kept me suffering for years. Doan's Kidney Pills did this for me when other remedies had failed. Whenever I feel any symptom of my old trouble I send to F. Potts Green's drug store for a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and it never requires more than a few doses to get me right."

THE WOMAN WHO COUGHED.

Catarrh had nearly ruined me. It had eaten away the partition in my nose; produced Asthma, Bronchitis, Rheumatism; ruined my stomach; in fact, gone all through my system. Then Grip finished me. I was a wreck; took cold at nothing; and coughed day and night. The doctors dosed me with opium and quinine. No good. Cough 'cures'? Bah! Then Brazilian Balm renovated me. Killed every germ. The Scrap Book

In His Own Line.

Jim Jackson was brought before a judge charged with chicken stealing. After Jackson's conviction the justice, with a perplexed look, said:

"But I do not understand, Jackson, how it was possible for you to steal those chickens when they were roosting right under the owner's window and there were two vicious dogs in the yard."

"Hit wouldn't do yer a bit o' good, jedge, for me to 'splain how I kotched dem chickens, fer you couldn't do hit yerself ef yer tried it fohty times, an' yer might git yer hide full er lead. De bes' way fer you ter do, jedge, is jes' ter buy yo' chickens in de market, same ez odder folks does, an' when yer wants ter commit any rascality do hit on de bench, whar yo' is at home."

BRAVE LOVE.

He'd nothing but his violin,
I'd nothing but my song.
But we were wed when skies were blue
And summer days were long.
And when we rested by the hedge
The robins came and told
How they had dared to woo and win
When early spring was cold.
We sometimes supped on dewberries,
Or slept among the hay,
But oft the farmers' wives at eve
Came out to hear us play
The rare old tunes—the dear old tunes—
We could not starve for long
While my man had his violin
And I my sweet love song.
The world has aye gone well with us,
Old man, since we were one—
Our homeless wanderings down the lanes—
It long ago was done.
But those who wait for gold or gear,
For houses and for kine,
Till youth's sweet spring grows brown and sere,
And love and beauty tine,
Will never know the joy of hearts
That met without a fear
When you had but your violin
And I a song, my dear.

An Interruption.

A little boy in his night dress was on his knees saying his prayers, and his little sister could not resist the temptation to tickle the soles of his feet. He stood it as long as he could and then said, "Please, God, excuse me while I knock the stuffin' out of Nellie."

The Mad Dog.

William J. Stevens, for several years local station agent at Swansea, R. I., was peacefully promenading his platform one morning when a rash dog ventured to snap at one of William's plump legs. Stevens promptly kicked the animal halfway across the tracks, and was immediately confronted by the owner, who demanded an explanation in language more forcible than courteous.

"Why," said Stevens when the other paused for breath, "your dog's mad."

"Mad! Mad! You double-eyed blankety-blank fool, he ain't mad!"

"Oh, ain't he?" cut in Stevens. "Gosh! I should be if any one kicked me like that!"—Everybody's.

Politeness Pays.

In one of the churches of New York, according to District Attorney Jerome, there was once an old woman who insisted on bowing her head every time the name of Satan was mentioned during the service or sermon. The rector, after noticing the eccentricity for many months, asked her: "Madam, why do you bow at the name of Satan? It is not customary, you know." "Oh, I know that," she said, "but it doesn't cost anything to be polite, and one never knows what will happen."

On the Job.

A New York printer who occupies a floor in Seventeenth street directed one of his clerks to hang out a "Boy Wanted" sign at the street entrance a few days ago. The card had been swinging in the breeze only a few minutes when a red headed little tad climbed to the printer's office with the sign under his arm.

"Say, mister," he demanded of the printer, "did youse hang out this here 'Boy Wanted' sign?"

"I did," replied the printer sternly. "Why did you tear it down?"

Back of his freckles the youngster was gazing in wonder at the man's stupidity.

"Hully gee!" he blurted. "Why, I'm the boy!"

And he was.

A Sympathetic King.

Louis Philippe knew that Marshal Soult clung to power and that his fall would be bitter to him, but when the time came the future ministers, with Thiers at their head, were assembled at the Tuileries, while in the next room Louis broke the news to Soult. The interview took a long time, and the ministers were not without apprehension. Finally the door was opened just enough to allow the king's queer pear shaped head to pass, and he whispered: "A little patience, gentlemen; just a little patience. We are weeping together."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Couldn't Go to Egypt.

An old gentleman advertised for an agreeable companion to visit Egypt with him. This advertisement was seen late at night by a young man who had been dining freely. He cogitated awhile and then told the club porter to call a hansom. The cab was procured, and with a little muscular exertion on the part of the porter and the cabby the young man was stowed away in its recesses.

He told the man to drive to the address given in the advertisement. Arrived there he was assisted to the pavement and with much dignity ordered the cabby to practice on the bell and knocker of the old fashioned residence. The advertiser stuck his venerable head out of the window, and after a parley conducted with explosive indignation, which was met with unruffled assurance from the pavement, the ancient came down and unbolted the door. When he had picked up the diner and stood him in the corner the following conversation took place:

"Now, sir, what do you mean by waking me up at this hour?"

"Come t'ansher 'vertishment."

"Well, sir, this is no time to come on such an errand. What have you to say?"

"I've come to tell you—very sor-ry—can't go with you."

A Volunteer.

A darky preacher was lost in the happy selection of his text, which he repeated in vigorous accents of pleading.

"Oh, bredern, at de las' day dere's gwine to be sheep an' dere's gwine to be goats. Who's gwine to be de sheep an' who's gwine to be de goats? Let's all try to be like de li'l' white lambs, bredern. Shall we be de goats, sisters? Naw, we's gwine to be de sheep. Who's gwine to be de sheep, bredern, an' who's gwine to be de goats? Tak' care ob youh souls, sisters. Remember dere's gwine to be goats an' sheep. Who's gwine to be de sheep an' who's gwine to be de goats?"

Just then a solitary Irishman who had been sitting in the back of the church, listening attentively, rose and said:

"Ol'll be the goat. Go on; tell us the joke, elder. Ol'll be the goat!"—Lippincott's.

He Knew His Father.

"Suppose," said a father to his little boy, "you have half an apple and I give you another half. How much have you?"

"A whole apple," said the boy.

"Well," continued the father, "suppose you had a half dollar and I gave you another half dollar. What would you have then?"

"A fit," promptly answered the boy.

Passed In the Dark.

It is said that General Knyphausen, who commanded the Hessian mercenaries in America in 1776, knew little about the sea and less about geography. On the voyage to America he was on Lord Howe's ship, where he passed several uncomfortable weeks, as the voyage was unusually long. Knyphausen was a martinet so far as discipline was concerned. He had strong scruples against interfering, but the time came when he could keep silence no longer. He marched stiffly up to the admiral and said: "My lord, I know it is the duty of a soldier to be submissive at sea; but, being intrusted with the troops of his serene highness, my master, I feel it my duty to inquire if it be not possible that during the extremely dark nights we have lately had we may have sailed past America."—Detroit Free Press.

Divorce Wanted.

Scene: Lawyer's office. Enter little girl, sobbing bitterly.

Lawyer—Why, little one, what's wrong?

Little Girl—Are you Mr. Blank, the lawyer?

The Lawyer—Yes. What is it you want?

Little Girl—I want (sob)—I want—a divorce from my pa and ma.

A Director of the Union Pacific.

Pushing into the private car of Mr. Harriman, a messenger boy said:

"Hello! I got er telegram for McKeen."

"You mean Mr. McKeen," interrupted Mr. Harriman, with a frosty smile.

"Yep, I guess so; the head cheese of the motive department."

Mr. Harriman took the telegram and had it sent to Mr. McKeen.

"What do you do?" he asked the lad, with a glance around at his companions.

"I'm one of the directors of the Union Pacific," said the boy, taking the challenge.

"What?" exclaimed Mr. Harriman.

"Yep. I direct envelopes over at the master mechanic's office," was the reply as the lad left the car.

A Matter of Etiquette.

The wedding ceremony was concluded. The proud but bashful bridegroom hesitated and then leaned over and whispered to the officiating clergyman, his natural tendency toward stuttering increased by embarrassment, "Is it k-k-kistomary to c-c-cuss the bride?"

She Won Her Uncle.

Uncle Harry was a bachelor and not fond of babies. Even winsome four-year-old Helen failed to win his heart. Every one made too much fuss over the youngster, Uncle Harry declared.

One day Helen's mother was called downstairs and with fear and trembling asked Uncle Harry, who was stretched out on a sofa, if he would keep his eye on Helen. Uncle Harry grunted "Yes," but never stirred from his position—in truth his eyes were tight shut.

By and by wee Helen tiptoed over to the sofa and leaning over Uncle Harry softly inquired:

"Feepy?"

"No," growled Uncle Harry.

"Tired?" ventured Helen.

"No," said her uncle.

"Sick?" further inquired Helen, with real sympathy in her voice.

"No," still insisted Uncle Harry.

"Dus' feel bum, hey?"

And that won the uncle!—Ladies' Home Journal.

Scotch Ostentation.

Boswell, at a public dinner, complained that he had his pocket picked of his handkerchief. "Pooh," said Dr. Johnson, "it's nothing but the ostentation of a Scotchman to let the world know that he had possessed a handkerchief."

A Discrepancy.

Two sailors, one Irish, the other English, agreed to take care of each other in case of either being wounded in the battle of Trafalgar. It was not long before the Englishman's leg was shot off by a cannon ball, and Paddy took him up to carry him to the doctor, according to their agreement, but had scarcely got his companion on his back when a second ball struck off the poor fellow's head. Paddy, through the noise and bustle, had not perceived his friend's last misfortune, but continued to make the best of his way to the surgeon. An officer, observing him with the headless trunk, asked him where he was going. "To the doctor," says Paddy. "The doctor!" says the officer. "Why, the man has lost his head." On hearing this the Irishman laid the body down and looked at it attentively. "That's strange," he said, "more than strange. Why, he told me 'twas his leg!"

He Knew.

Lady Customer—I wish to tell you how these shoes of mine are to be made. Shoemaker—Oh, I know that well enough—large inside and small outside.—Meggendorfer Blatter.

Why He Felt Happy.

"Vernon told me this morning," related the lady with the cold blue eye, "that he passed the tree where two years ago he carved your initials and his own and encircled them with a heart. He says he felt so glad he almost danced for joy!"

"Ah," said the tall brunette anxiously, "then he must still love me, after all! Did he tell you why he felt so happy?"

"Yes, dear. He said some men were cutting the tree down!"

A la China.

Mamma—Come now, son, and take your medicine like a good little boy. You know in China all the children take medicine when well to keep them from being sick.

Little Boy—And do they whip the children in China when they are good to keep them from being naughty?—St. Louis Republic.

His Strong Point.

Managing Director—Well, and what are your qualifications for the post of night watchman? Applicant—Well, sir, for one thing, the least noise wakes me up.—Illustrated Bits.

Poor Holland.

Little Ella—I'm never going to Holland when I grow up.

Governess—Why not?

Friend—So that is your little boy? He looks very intelligent. Proud Mamma—Just as I was at his age. My daughter, now, is more like her father.—Nos Loisirs.

Old Farmer Jones Says.

I had to come to town this morning to bring some marketing down as our cows are doin well just now since we turned them in to the second groth clover. I stopped at Jim McCafferty's and asked him if they wanted any fresh Butter, but his little boy spoke up and said they had a "butter back in the lot and they got it up at one of Reynolds farm. It is a dandy?

then I have a yearling calf that was threatened with appendicitis and had to telegraph for some Horse and Cattle powder (Barkers I think they call it) and I was standing in front of Williards bargain store watching Mark Williams tip his hat at them wax ladies in the window when Morton Bidwell came along and I asked him where the telegraph office was, he said its down town but that nice little fellow who run it left town? I said by gosh I'm sorry. I kinder liked that littlefellow beside I heered tell as how he soiter was keepin his eye on one of my girls! then I began to inquire where he had gone to but morton did not know only he said there was a "scab" up in his chair? then I thanked the stars I did not go up as I know he must of had the small pox. but I just went to the telephone and gave one ring for the exchange and then sat down and waited about a half hour when a fine voice answered "was you calling" yes I said I was about an hour ago. but I thought may be you had closed up too, and I feel sure by this time the calf was dead. and to never mind that I would raise chickens as I heer'd tell they were sellin as high as fifteen dollars down at Hecla Park and speaking of chickens reminds me a little accident Sarah had comin to town with a basket of eggs thursday morning a fellow run over her with his Automobile and broke all her eggs of course as he is a neighbor I won,t tell his name as he apologized and offered to pay for the eggs he wanted to know how many she had now Sarah said when counted two, three, four, five, or six at a time always one remained but if counted seven at a time they came out even.

I heerd tell there was a lot of boys camping down at Hecla; and last night, at the dance when the Band played "Home sweet Home" there was tears droping down twelve of them boys cheeks. now I don't know why but lets see twelve into fifteen are how many' they say when a fellow is going to get married he always paints his house buys a new buggy or does something great or goes to work. there is not much hope of a few fellows in Bellefonte getting hitched up soon I tell you I got a dozen dog tars when I was in town and only used five. I met six or eight fellows with dogs, on my way home and asked them whose dog that was; oh thats a tramp dog was the reply from every one I never saw so many tramp dogs in my life "why do you suppose is this thus" then Sarah spoke up and said I bet they took you for the assessor, well I just Bil-d over and was at the point of usen some profound language and said its a mean stingy? one day out of a whole year dis own a good faithful dog and the ballance of the year when things aint moren right use the dog for a foot ball let him run the chicks out of the lot bring the cows and watch the Buglers and preachers away when you have card parties stay out in the co'd all winter and then be denighed the right of dog franchise my gracious why don't the society of cruelty to animals find homes for these tramp dogs. I just said I would be willing to find homes for a few more if this society would call on me? then I think there are a few horses need looking after to. My little willie, wanted to know when they were going to plaster a certain team of horses as they were "lathered" for some time. I told him I thought they had their last coat.

Only a Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."
